

Victim tells of haunting fear after bout with rapist

PORTERVILLE (AP) — "I'm still paranoid. I don't go out at night. I wake up crying sometimes... I guess I'm still a bit bitter towards men. The whole thing made me a cold person."

The speaker is a 25-year-old divorcee—one of 11 women believed to be victims of the same rapist over the past two years in this Tulare County community of 15,000.

The women, ranging in age from 19 to 36, were attacked by a man described by police as smooth and thorough. Three of the victims managed to escape, the other eight were actually raped.

"He plans his crimes very carefully, he seems to know a lot about the victim, where she works, who she dates, where she has been and even where she had to go," Police Chief John Start said.

Start said the rapist's last known victim was attacked Sept. 30 at a local motel.

The woman was overpowered as she entered the room and, as with the other victims, her hands were tied. The rapist has another unique characteristic—he often spends as much as two hours with the victim, Start said.

All the victims have described him in similar terms: a slim young man with light hair wearing a mask or bandana.

Police have collected footprints and even fingerprints, but so far have been unable to match them with a suspect, Start said.

"There is no question about it, we have a lot of women who worry much of the time about being raped," he said.

The young divorcee said the rapist broke into her room early one morning brandishing a knife.

"I knew I was going to die. I didn't think about rape, robbery or anything else."

The two-story home she lived in, her "dream home," became a house of nightmares for her.

"When I went back to it after this happened, I got sick. I couldn't sleep there...my dream house turned into a nightmare house."

Start says he has spoken to a number of women's groups about the subject of rape, but there is no easy answer for the woman confronted by a determined rapist.

"We really can't tell women absolutely what to do. Telling a woman to resist to the end or submit in hopes of getting out of a potentially fatal situation is not something we can do. Ultimately the woman has to make the final decision."

The rapist told his motel victim he was leaving town, and since that September incident there have been no new rapes chalked up to the masked man, Start said. He hopes the rapist's reign of terror is over.

But even though the string of attacks may be broken, the memory of past assaults will linger on in the minds of the victims.

"I was frightened and felt that by submitting, I might get out alive," the divorcee said. "I did, but I don't think the memory, the fear, will ever fade out of my mind."

Election filings to open

The 1976 municipal election campaign gets underway Thursday with the opening of the filing period for 25 offices in eight valley cities.

Pomona will not hold elections until 1977.

Three cities will be casting ballots March 2, not only for council positions but also for city clerks and city treasurers.

One veteran incumbent withdrew from the running on the eve of the filing period. Eight-year Chino Councilman Edward T. Lynch announced Tuesday night that he will pass up a re-election bid because of business pressures.

But a sampling of other incumbents indicated there'll be familiar names on the ballots March 2.

Mayor Mike M. Morales of La Verne will seek a third, two-year term.

In San Dimas both incumbents, Keith Brogan and Ray Miracle, intend to run for re-election. In Claremont, Eleanor Cohen says she will run for a four-year term after her current two-year position ends.

The filing period closes at 5 p.m. Dec. 24. But in cases where the incumbents decide not to run for office, that period will be extended to Dec. 30.

These are the vacancies in valley communities:

NYC plan gets by in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's $2.3 billion loan plan for New York City passed its first Senate test today as opponents lost overwhelmingly in an attempt to send it back to committee.

By a vote of 57 to 23, the Senate tabled a motion by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to send the loan bill back to the Banking Committee.

The vote set the stage for final action by the Senate on Friday.

It came after 21 senators petitioned to block a filibuster against the plan, approved by a 10-vote margin in the House. Backers of the measure hoped for final passage before New York faces its next default deadline Dec. 11.

Helms objected to the petition for cloture, saying he wanted to debate it. But such a petition is not debatable under Senate rules, which permit a vote on the petition two days after it is filed.

Ky claims 200 South Viet officers slain

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Nguyen Cao Ky, former vice president and premier of South Vietnam, says Communists executed 200 South Vietnamese military officers about three weeks ago and that he has no doubt there will be future executions.

Ky said Tuesday he learned of the executions from reliable sources, adding that the officers were executed because in the past they "gave the Communists a hard time."

Ky made his comments at a news conference before speaking on the Virginia Commonwealth University campus.

Floodwaters hit Washington

SEATTLE (AP) — Flood waters surged through the streets of at least seven communities in western Washington while mud and snow slides forced the closing of some of the state's major highways.

At least 250 families were evacuated from their homes in the flood-threatened towns Tuesday. A Snohomish County official and the mayor of Aberdeen, a coastal community of 14,000, asked to have their districts designated as disaster areas.

The high water in western Washington was caused by heavy rain and melting snow from the Cascade Mountains. An area from the Nooksack River, 70 miles north of Seattle, to the Chehalis River, 170 miles to the south, was affected.

The National Weather Service predicted heavy rain would slacken as temperatures cooled, causing the swollen rivers to recede slowly.

Two feet of water ran down the streets of Sultan, 35 miles northeast of Seattle, while firemen in North Bend, 35 miles east of Seattle, tried to open backed up drains which inundated several streets.

"Things are looking pretty bad up here," one North Bend fireman said late Tuesday. "The storm sewers were supposed to provide 100 years' flood protection."

A mudslide 20 miles east of Seattle closed Interstate 90 near Issaquah, and a huge snowslide closed Stevens Pass, state police said. Portions of the roadway 70 miles northeast of Seattle were completely washed out.

Boats were the only means of transportation to the small mountain town of Carnation in northeast King County, the patrol said.

About 100 families were evacuated from their homes along the flooding Cedar River just south of Seattle.

Frank Patterson, director of emergency services in Snohomish County, asked that lowland areas along the Snohomish River near Everett be declared a disaster area. He said preliminary estimates of flood damage exceeded $2 million.

The Snohomish River was 7 feet above flood stage Tuesday night and still rising.

Aberdeen Mayor Walt Failor declared his city a disaster area and called on Gov. Dan Evans for financial help.

More than 4.25 inches of rain fell in a 24-hour period on Stampede Pass in the southern Washington Cascades.

Rain washed out a railroad bridge over Big Creek, four miles east of Easton, as a Milwaukee Road freight train was crossing it. Two engines and 11 cars sank into the stream, but only minor injuries were reported.

Engineer John Ruscio said the train was traveling about 40 miles per hour when the wood piling bridge gave way just as the lead engine reached the other side of the creek.

"One minute the bridge was there. The next minute it wasn't," he said.

BETTY GETS INTO THE PEKING SWING

First Lady Betty Ford took off her shoes and joined a class of young girls in a provincial folk dance during a visit to a dance school in Peking. She followed with few missteps.

Nessen says no news is good news

PEKING (AP) — The White House announced today that there will be no communique at the end of President Ford's five-day China visit, but spokesman Ron Nessen said all signs from the meetings between Ford and Chinese leaders have been good.

Nessen warned against interpreting the absence of a communique as an indication that nothing has been accomplished on the visit, which included a one-hour and 50-minute talk Tuesday with Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

"Every public sign has been a good sign as to the atmosphere of the meeting and there hasn't been any bad signs," he said.

To "successfully accomplish the purpose of the meeting does not require a document," he added.

The 1972 summit meeting between President Richard M. Nixon and Premier Chou En-lai wound up with a lengthy communique signed in Shanghai which spelled out Chinese-American relations.

Nessen made his announcement near the end of Ford's third day in China, which included a second business meeting between the President and Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, who is acting premier during the illness of Premier Chou En-lai.

The White House said the 2½-hour Teng-Ford session was a significant talk "covering a wide range of international issues."

Nessen said the decision not to issue a communique at the end of visit was mutually decided upon by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Foreign Minister Chiao Kuanhua.

The final talks between Ford and Teng Hsiao-ping will be held Thursday morning. No details have been given of the subjects discussed so far but Nessen said that U.S.-Soviet detente was one of many subjects. China feels the United States is being taken in by the Soviets and that Moscow will use detente as an excuse for expansion in Asia.

Nessen said "I think it would be a mistake to look at this meeting and feel if there is not a document signed or an agreement reached or a program announced or something like that the meeting was without meaning."

The President's 18-year-old daughter Susan missed a private banquet given by Teng in the Great Hall tonight and a gymnastic performance afterward.

"She was just plain tired," Nessen said. "I talked to Dr. (William) Lukash and he said there's absolutely nothing physically wrong with her." Lukash is the White House physician.

Hostages still held on train

BEILEN, The Netherlands (AP) — Five Indonesians holding about 50 hostages aboard a hijacked train stranded in northern Holland opened fire on a would-be mediator today and released a Chinese cook with new demands.

More than 150 armed men ringed the train but kept out of range. Two persons were killed aboard the train shortly after the hijacking, and the men in the cordon made no attempt to get aboard.

The Chinese cook brought a message demanding an engineer for the train, food and drink for 55 persons, a bullhorn and medicine for an epileptic and a diabetic, officials said.

The hijackers opened fire on an official who drove toward the train in an attempt to open negotiations. One shot hit within 10 yards of the car, and the driver pulled back.

The Indonesians released four persons shortly after they took over the train, and three others escaped by jumping off. But police said a report that two other hostages jumped off and hid apparently was incorrect.

The Dutch government rejected an earlier demand from the hijackers that they be given safe conduct out of the country with some of their hostages. Justice Minister Dries Van Agt said Tuesday night that "under no circumstances" would the hijackers be allowed to leave the country with hostages.

Armed with pistols and a hunting rifle, the Indonesians seized the four-coach local train Tuesday, killed the engineer and another man and took the passengers hostage, officials reported.

The train was standing on the track in an open field, ringed by police, marine commandos and army marksmen. But they stayed 650 yards from the train because the Indonesians were "shooting at anything that moves," a police spokesman said.

Officials said the gang attached dynamite to the train and threatened to blow it up unless their demands were met.

The hijackers were reported to be militant exiles from the South Molucca or Spice Islands, the scene of an unsuccessful revolt against Indonesia in 1950. It was believed that they were trying to call attention to the South Moluccan independence movement.

Three women released from the train with a 3-year-old child shortly after the hijacking brought the police a demand for transportation to Amsterdam's Schiphol Airport, 90 miles away, and a plane to fly the hijackers out of the country with an unspecified number of hostages.

Another demand apparently was for two transistor radios. But when a policeman stripped to his underwear and tried to take them to the train, the hijackers warned him off. An official said several passengers aboard the train were known to have radios.

Pomona woman flees knife-wielding captor

A 30-year-old Pomona woman told police late Tuesday night that she was kidnaped by a well-groomed, good-looking man who drove her around the valley before she was able to leap from her car in the Fontana area and escape.

The victim, Maxine Suzette Brooks, suffered bruises when she jumped from her own moving car, but did not require immediate medical attention.

She gave this account to Pomona police and San Bernardino County sheriff's deputies:

Mrs. Brooks visited a sick friend at Pomona Valley Community Hospital Tuesday night and walked to her car parked on the lot in front of the building.

She unlocked the vehicle and got in when a man walked up, placed a 4-inch kitchen knife to her throat and demanded money. The man, who was a Caucasian about 33, said he had been out of work for six months and had not eaten for three days. He promised not to injure Mrs. Brooks, if she gave him money.

Eventually, however, the man ordered Mrs. Brooks into the passenger seat of her car and got into the driver's seat himself. Then he produced a roll of electrician's tape and taped her wrists together before driving from the lot and to the San Bernardino Freeway.

The man, described as well-mannered, asked the victim about a shopping center and she directed him off the freeway at Monte Vista Avenue and towards the Montclair Plaza. But instead of going there he reentered the freeway at Central Avenue and drove east again, saying he would let her out in Fontana.

Eventually they left the freeway near a large, lighted truck stop, apparently at Milliken Avenue. Mrs. Brooks said the man continued driving around when she was able to unlock the car door next to her and jump out. The man did not stop, but drove off with her car, a 1965 Ford Mustang.

Mrs. Brooks said she ran a quarter of a mile to a house at 10136 Almond St. in the Fontana area, where she asked the resident to call the police. She was met there by sheriff's deputies, who took her to the station in Fontana and summoned Pomona police.

The victim said the man did not injure her in any way and appeared interested only in getting her money. She said he was about 5 feet 7, weighed 160 pounds and had brown hair. He wore a flowered blue shirt and brushed denim jacket and slacks which she described as a leisure suit. He also wore a diamond-shaped medallion around his neck.

8th Belknap seaman dies

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — PO 2 C. Michael W. Kawola, 21, of Troy, N.Y., died Tuesday night of burns he suffered in a collision between the carrier John F. Kennedy and the cruiser Belknap last Nov. 22.

Seven other men died earlier as a result of injuries suffered in the collision near Sicily.

A spokesman for the Surgical Research Institute at Brooke Army Medical Center said Kawola was one of five Navy men badly burned in the collision. They were brought to the medical facility Nov. 26.

The spokesman said the other four men were still in serious condition.

Impact of Claremont school closings challenged in court

A Claremont citizens group has taken the Claremont school board to court over the scheduled closing of Sycamore Elementary School and La Puerta Intermediate School.

Citizens for Quality Education and Ralph A. Spaulding, a Claremont resident, have petitioned the Pomona Superior Court for a writ of mandate which would require the board to prepare an environmental impact report.

According to the petition, the school board has denied the position of CQE that the school closings are subject to the Environmental Quality Act of 1970.

The school board by a 4-1 vote at its June 2 meeting decided that Sycamore should be closed as an elementary school site at the end of the present school year, and that effective the 1977-78 school year the present intermediate school program at La Puerta be discontinued.

La Puerta presently has an enrollment of about 300 seventh and eighth-graders. Sycamore has an enrollment of about 300 in grades kindergarten through six.

CQE contends that no elementary schools are located adjacent to or in the immediate vicinity of Sycamore School, nor is there an intermediate school adjacent to or in the immediate vicinity of La Puerta.

CQE also contends that the closings may degrade the quality of the environment by affecting land use, the quality of air and water, the generation of noise, the increased consumption of fuel and other natural resources, and the degradation of structures of historic and aesthetic significance.

CQE also asks that the school board be directed to take no actions to implement the closings prior to the certification of an environmental impact report.

Wynne S. Furth of Allard, Shelton and O'Connor said that her clients are asking that the school board follow the proper procedure or explain why not to the court.

Miss Furth called the environmental impact report "a logical extension of the Environmental Quality Act. The act is still comparatively new, and results of cases are continually filtering down to us."

She said that the environmental impact report creates a forum for opinions, and that an agency must deal with any questions raised.

She contended the proposed school closings are "the subject of substantial public controversy, and are in conflict with the environmental plans and goals of Claremont."

She said she would like to see the court hearing held "after the first of the year" to give the board time to answer the petition.

Dist. Supt. R. S. Kirkendall has referred the matter to the district's new legal adviser, Mrs. Elaine Canty, who divides her time 25 per cent with the Claremont district, 25 per cent with the Bonita School District, and 50 per cent with the Pomona School District.

The district has from five days until the day of the court hearing to answer the petition.

University of world is U.N. unit's focus

Harold Taylor, a former president of Sarah Lawrence College, will be the speaker at a dinner meeting of the Pomona Valley Chapter of the United Nations Association on Thursday.

"A University for the World: The United Nations Plan" will be Taylor's topic for the 5:30 p.m. meeting in Oldenborg Center, Pomona College, Claremont.

Taylor served as Sarah Lawrence president from 1945 to 1959 and taught philosophy at the University of Wisconsin. In 1973, he organized the U.S. Committee for the United Nations University.

He is the author of several books and articles on education.

The public is invited to attend. Reservations for the dinner at $2.25 each may be made by calling 626-6511, extension 3862.

Create rapid transit or 'go under'—Ward

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Warning that Los Angeles County would "go under if we don't have rapid transit," County Supervisor Baxter Ward has committed himself to placing a multibillion dollar rapid transit development program on next June's ballot.

Ward took over as chairman of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors on Tuesday and said he believes a high speed commuter network is the county's most pressing problem.

Ward's proposal to help finance mass transit development is a one-cent sales tax boost. He said he will ask the Southern California Rapid Transit District's board, on which he sits, to place such a proposal before the voters.

If the RTD will not go along with his proposal, which could earn $230 million annually, Ward said he already has an organization to gather signatures needed to have the proposition placed on the ballot.

The board endorsed a proposal by Supervisor James A. Hayes, Ward's predecessor, for a rapid transit starter line linking Union Station in downtown Los Angeles and Long Beach.

In another action, the supervisors called for a special session of the state legislature to deal with the medical malpractice insurance problem.

Supervisors Kenneth Hahn and Pete Schabarum said malpractice insurance rates will jump 480 per cent on Jan. 1 and that hike may drive scores of doctors out of California practices.

"Some doctors will be forced to pay annual premiums of $40,000," Hahn said.

"It is imperative the legislature meet immediately in special session for the sole purpose of heading off this major crisis," he added.

S.D. woman bitten, faces painful shots

Mrs. Hazel Hallock of 204 E. 5th St., San Dimas, will have to undergo the painful series of anti-rabies injections if the dog which bit her last Saturday is not located.

Mrs. Hallock said the animal, a tan and white spaniel somewhat larger than a cocker, had jumped the picket fence around their patio and caught its front paw between two pickets.

As she attempted to free the excited animal it bit her on the right arm just above the wrist making three deep puncture wounds.

Mrs. Hallock was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

To save her from having to undergo the injections, it must be determined whether the dog has had the rabies shots.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of the animal is asked to call the San Dimas Sheriff's Station at 599-1261.

PE made optional for Pomona juniors, seniors

By PHYLLIS CANNON
PB Staff Writer

Juniors and seniors in Pomona's public high schools will have the option of whether to take physical education second semester.

This was the decision of Pomona school board Tuesday night. It passed on a 3-2 vote with board members Ken Pine and Gene Whitlock casting the no votes.

It was the second time the school board had considered this issue, allowable under Senate Bill 16, which takes effect Jan. 1.

At the Nov. 18 school board meeting, Pine was absent. Board members Mary Montes and C. Allen Braswell voted to make physical education optional. Whitlock and board President Don Donnelly dissented.

Donnelly switched his vote Tuesday after listening to three teachers ask that it be denied and one high school counselor ask that it be approved.

The legislation allows 10th graders who have spent at least one year in the 10th grade also to select other courses in place of physical education.

Under the board's decision students still will be required to earn 200 credit units to be eligible to receive high school diplomas. However, after age 16, and one year in 10th grade, they may substitute credits from other courses offerings for physical education credits.

Pine voiced strong opposition to the move.

"I'm a big fan of PE," he began. "You have to develop the body as well as the mind. It is difficult for me to believe that the majority of our PE people (teachers and coaches) have gone along with this. I cannot support a bill that makes PE optional any more than a bill that would make reading and writing optional."

Whitlock did not cite his reasons for voting no.

Mrs. Eleanor F. Duncan, Pomona High School counselor, said physical education is optional for students who enroll in vocational classes offered through the Baldy View Regional Occupation Program (ROP).

To require those not in ROP to take physical education she said is "unequal treatment of students." By 11th grade, academic pursuits have become primary concerns of many young people, she continued.

Teachers who asked the board to reject the administration's recommendation and not make physical education optional for the high schoolers were Miss Velma Sandoval, Lawrence M. Fischbach and Janet S. Regner, all of Garey High School.

They said Garey is not prepared to handle additional students in its regular classroom and does not have facilities to offer more electives.

Cucamonga imposes rules on school use

The Central school board of Cucamonga adopted a policy Tuesday evening requiring community groups using school facilities for large-scale public events to pay for security personnel hired for the event.

The exception would be an agreement otherwise specified by the district, prior to the event taking place. The district, under the new policy, is to hire all security guards whether or not the sponsoring group pays for their services.

The Bernstein Co.'s bid of $5,389 was accepted by the board for the purchasing of darkening drapes in Central School classrooms. The drapes are to be primarily used in the aid of viewing films in class. Currently, students have to be transferred to the cafeteria in order to have a sufficient darkened area.

The board approved the purchase of $1,097.29 worth of classroom equipment, including cassette tape recorders, reel tape recorders, and a record player, to replace items stolen during the last month from Central School.

Also approved was $250 to be paid to William S. Rule, for his work on the impartial fact-finding committee set up during the recent dispute over teacher's salaries, and the installation of a gateway on the Church Street side of Central Junior High School.

Homes won't be short of natural gas in winter

SACRAMENTO (AP) — No private residence in California will be hit with an interruption of its natural gas supply this winter even if there is a gas shortage, state officials say.

But the staff of the State Energy Commission began Tuesday to set up a temporary fuel allocation office to give small commercial users and industry advice on where to turn in the event of a shortage.

Commission spokesman Vic Biondi said commission staff are available in Sacramento to assist users who have their gas turned off and try to locate any needed natural gas supplies.

During a commission meeting Monday, staff said that any shortage would not prompt an interruption of gas service to residential customers.

"Homes will not be interrupted. They are first priority," Biondi said. "The shortage is going to be worse in other parts of the country than it is here."

However, some small commercial users — including convalescent homes, irrigation districts, waste treatment plants and food processors — and some large industry could expect to have their gas turned off occasionally, Biondi said.

CAP leaves mountain search; too crowded

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — Citing crowded skies, the Civil Air Patrol has withdrawn from the search for three persons missing on board a plane believed down near Big Bear mountain.

A CAP spokesman said Tuesday the CAP had been instructed by the U.S. Air Force Rescue and Recovery Service to suspend its search "in the interest of flying safety to reduce congestion."

County moves Ontario building plans ahead

Construction of a county building in downtown Ontario took another step forward this week when San Bernardino County supervisors requested that a contract be negotiated for site development plans and specifications.

Barmakian-Norman and Associates, the firm selected, will be asked to include in these documents the relocation and new installations of public utilities systems; landscaping; irrigation systems; grading; paving and storm water drainage.

Relocation of certain aerial utility lines must be done before construction can begin, said officials.

Cost of these preparations is estimated at $22,000.

The county is joining the City of Ontario in developing a city-county complex in a six-block area bounded by Sultana and Lemon avenues and B and D streets.

The county will build a structure with 63,000 square feet of floor space to house various county agencies. The city proposes to build a city hall and community building. The complex, however, will include the city's existing police and fire stations and library.

Supervisor Robert Townsend said the county plans to seek construction bids next January and start construction in March or April.

The county building, estimated to cost $2 million, will take about 11 months to complete.

Since approving the construction program last year, the county has been active in purchasing 26 parcels in a two-block area its structure will occupy.

Officials have been successful in obtaining 23 of these parcels in the area between D and C streets and Plum and Sultana avenues.

In other board action, supervisors approved a $1,500 contract with Verne Cox to provide fee appraisal of two of these parcels.

House debates tax cut extension

Liberal seeks to end some tax advantages

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bill to extend this year's tax cut heads for action on the House floor where liberals will attempt to end some tax advantages, including the so-called "Perot amendment."

The House is expected to send the bill to the Senate tonight or Thursday. Both chambers face time pressures to finish the tax-cut extension before adjourning for Christmas either Dec. 12 or Dec. 19 because the tax cuts now in effect expire Dec. 31.

Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Donald C. Alexander said Tuesday the government will require employers to increase the amount of taxes withheld from workers' paychecks after Dec. 31 if no taxcut extension has been approved. He ruled out any temporary administrative extension of current tax rates.

Failure to extend the tax cuts would cost a married man earning $15,000 a year and supporting a wife and two children an additional $4.73 a week in withholding, or about $250 more in income taxes for the year, IRS figures show. For a single person earning $15,000, withholding would be increased about $3 a week, or $156 in added income taxes.

The tax-cut bill faces a veto by President Ford, who has said he would send back any bill that fails to tie spending cuts to the tax cut. Such a link was rejected by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Regardless of any tax-revision provisions the House adopts, Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, which must take up the measure in the Senate, has indicated he plans to strip the bill of all but a simple extension of the tax cuts because there is no time left this year to consider revisions.

In a final pitch for House votes for the basic bill, Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, said failure today to sustain the proposed plan of action on some major amendments "could well so prolong the bill's consideration by the House that a tax increase of $1 billion a month will occur on Jan. 1 and our whole effort to achieve meaningful tax reform will be undermined."

The proposed plan of action, as recommended by the House Rules Committee, will allow some amendments to be made from the floor of the House, a step rarely taken because Ways and Means tax legislation usually is offered to the floor only for approval or disapproval. Amendments are frowned upon because of the complexity of the legislation and the economic issues involved.

However, this time the committee's leadership sought to permit some amendments designed to eliminate some tax advantages. One of the targets is expected to be the committee-approved provision that would enable large investors to recoup some of their losses.

The Wall Street Journal has said Texas businessman H. Ross Perot would gain about $15 million in tax refunds if the provision, which was drafted by Perot's lawyer, were enacted. The newspaper also noted that Perot had contributed about $27,000 to the campaigns of 12 members of the 37-person committee.

Following that disclosure, several members of the committee expressed the desire to amend the bill on the floor because the committee had already finished work on the measure. The Rules Committee agreed to allow a floor vote on whether to knock out this provision.

The House Rules Committee rejected attempts to allow the bill to be opened to all amendments and it specifically turned down a Republican-backed request that the full House have a chance to pass on Ford's proposal that the tax cut be linked with a spending cut.

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE

Mark Elmore looks over the Cedar River in Maple Valley, Wash., Tuesday as the river flows around his home. Mark and his mother were waiting out flood warnings in hopes they wouldn't have to leave their home. The river was expected to crest above floodstage during the afternoon. It rose about seven inches in three hours. The rain is continuing today.

Mayors agree they disagree on school busing program

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The most widespread agreement among the nation's city officials is that they disagree so fundamentally on school busing that they dare not try to take a stand on it as a group.

As court-ordered busing to achieve racial integration emerged as a volatile issue in the 1970s, both the National League of Cities and its sister organization, the U.S. Conference of Mayors, avoided in each year, including this one, issuing any policy statement on school busing as a desegregation tool.

The league represents 15,000 cities and the conference speaks for those cities with more than 30,000 residents.

At the Conference of Mayors meeting last July in Boston, the city executives said not a word about busing even though 30 floors above them in the same hotel, 100 antibusing demonstrators led by Louise Day Hicks seized Mayor Kevin White's suite for most of a day. They also ignored antibusing protesters who marched and chanted outside the hotel during most of the conference.

The education policy drafted by the league at its convention here this week says only that disruptions brought about by desegregation attempts should be the concern of school officials and the business community as well as of school boards. It does not mention either "mayors" or "busing."

At most meetings of urban officials, proponents of either probusing or antibusing resolutions are deflected or dissuaded by their colleagues either in closed-door sessions or in committee meetings.

At this week's league convention, both Democratic and Republican caucuses declined to adopt resolutions explicitly discussing busing despite efforts to do so in both groups.

Many city officials have said over the last six years that they shouldn't get involved because it is an issue for independent school boards, whether elected or appointed.

Others, most of whom will speak only off the record, admit that the city officials are doubtful they could reach any compromise position and are convinced that an effort to do so could consume most of their time at their annual convention.

WALNUT: The seats of Councilmen William Cotten, Joe P. Dyer and Robert Lovemark.

ONTARIO: The council seats of Fay Dastrup, Marie Sharp and Gustavo Ramos, City Clerk Delores Arterburn and City Treasurer Viola Antwiler.

CHINO — The positions of Mayor Bob McLeod and Councilman Ed Lynch.

Lynch is serving Chino as a vice mayor. He said he was bowing out because of business pressures in his work as vice president of C.J. Payne Co. in Carson. He said the commitments of his out-of-town job made it "impossible for me to attend council meetings. I served for eight years and it has been a very enjoyable experience."

Lynch said he was announcing his retirement early to give other candidates as much time as possible.

The retiring councilman served on the city's planning commission for three years.

Democrat governors urge tax cut, aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic governors today urged a $12 billion income tax cut and a new program of federal aid to create jobs and fight recession, despite a complaint that they were being irresponsible.

The complaint came from Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who cast the only dissenting vote as 14 of his colleagues adopted a resolution seeking more help from Washington to promote economic recovery.

"I just can't agree... that we can spend our way into prosperity," Briscoe said.

"That's political rhetoric, Governor," Florida Gov. Reubin Askew snapped at Briscoe. "No one is suggesting that, so let's get that square right now."

There are 36 Democratic governors, but only 21 came to town for the two-day Democratic Governors Conference that began with a marathon procession of Democratic presidential candidates Tuesday.

The only candidate who didn't show up was Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace. He didn't attend the conference business session today either.

After their day of listening to the candidates, the governors set about shaping their own economic formula — which turned out to be generally what liberal presidential contenders want to do.

The governors' resolution advocated a tax cut extension of about $12 billion a year and rejected as "economically unsound" President Ford's call for a $28 billion tax cut balanced by an equal spending cut.

They also urged an emergency job creation program, enactment of pending legislation for $2 billion in antirecession grants to state and local governments, and approval of accelerated public works programs.

Gov. Dan Walker of Illinois said those programs would cost a total of about $10 billion.

Canadian postal strike at an end

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — Restoration of mail service throughout Canada began today following the end of 43-day postal strike, the longest in the nation's history.

Two-thirds of the 22,000 members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers voted by a narrow margin to accept a tentative wage agreement and began returning to their jobs Tuesday night.

A spokesman for the Canadian Embassy in Washington said mail service from the United States to Canada will be resumed "possibly before the end of the week." He said there was a backlog of mail to be cleared out of post offices before new mail could be accepted.

The agreement must still be approved by the federal wage-price board which rejected similar increases last week for teachers in Toronto and Hamilton.

Union headquarters said that 14,541 votes cast, 7,531 or 51.8 per cent favored accepting the agreement while 6,886 or 47.5 per cent voted against it. There were 141 invalid ballots.

Another 2,700 union members who went back to work during the strike were not allowed to vote. Presumably they would have voted in favor of settlement.

The government said first and second-class mail could be sent to addresses inside the country, but it asked that mail addressed outside the country be held until further notice.

Union leaders recommended that the workers reject the contract, which was virtually the same as the one offered by Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey when the strike began in October. It provides for an increase of $1.70 an hour in four stages during the 30 months ending in July 1977, a 40-hour work week and a cost-of-living clause that would permit an increase of up to 10 cents an hour every three months to counter inflation.

Rail talks a failure

WASHINGTON (AP) — An all-night bargaining session between the nation's railroads and four shopcraft unions failed to avert the threat of a nationwide railroad strike Thursday.

Chief federal mediator W.J. Usery Jr. said today the talks "could go either way." He declined to state whether any progress was made during the marathon bargaining session.

A source involved in the talks said both sides know "they're nearing the end of the line" and will have to make some decisions soon.

The unions, representing 70,000 boilermakers, carmen, electrical workers and firemen, have declared they will begin striking at 6 a.m. (EST) Thursday unless a settlement is reached.

Usery hinted Monday that the Ford administration would ask Congress to intervene if the strike deadline approached with no progress in the talks. The last time Congress acted in a railroad strike was in 1973, when special legislation was passed halting a one-day walkout against the Penn Central.

Spotlight on area crime

Chinoan arraigned in shooting case

Edward James Festa, 32, accused of shooting and seriously wounding a Chino man at Elli's Forum in Montclair last week has been arraigned in West Valley Municipal Court on one count of attempted murder.

The formal complaint, charging attempted murder, was filed with the court Tuesday and a preliminary hearing on the incident will be held next week.

Festa is accused of critically wounding Gary Goodman, 32, of Chino on Thanksgiving morning after Festa allegedly threatened the bar owner with a gun. Goodman was listed in improved condition this morning at Loma Linda University Medical Center following surgery for removal of a small caliber bullet from his chest.

Three men arrested Nov. 23 in Pomona after allegedly forcing two youths into a van and later leaving them in San Dimas area have been charged with false imprisonment, battery and using a gun in a threatening manner.

They are Bruce Lamar Peterson, 24, 2582 Hayes Drive, La Verne; Ralph Donald Taylor III, 27, 242 E. Pearl St., Pomona; and John Russell Maze, 23, 689 E. La Verne Ave. Maze's address was given incorrectly as 688 E. La Verne Ave. in the original story of the incident in the Nov. 24 Progress Bulletin.

The three men are scheduled for arraignment Dec. 8 in Pomona Municipal Court.

The suspects were arrested that night in an alley near La Verne and Towne avenues in Pomona. Arresting officers said they found a .22-caliber semi-automatic rifle, a shotgun, a .22-caliber revolver and a .22-caliber bolt-action rifle beneath a mattress inside the van. All were unloaded, they said.

Strange things happen

While deer hunters are away

SAYRE, Pa. (AP) — A house burned while the town's volunteer fire officials scrambled to find any fire fighters who weren't out deer hunting. The homeowner still doesn't know about it. He was out hunting, too.

In Allegheny County, across the state, county court postponed criminal trials because so many witnesses, including at least one police officer, were toting guns in the woods.

And in Canton, Pa., a man shot himself in the leg trying to bag a deer with a handgun.

That's just a sampling of the strange happenings that have plagued Pennsylvania's rural areas since an estimated 1.3 million hunters took to the fields when the state's deer season began on Monday.

The tens of thousands of hunters who rolled into Lycoming and Potter counties near the New York State border with their campers used so much electricity that there was a six-hour power outage — the worst ever, officials say.

Robert Butts, manager of the Tri-County Rural Electric Co-op, said the region needs twice as much electricity when the hunting season begins. A $500,000 substation may have to be built to prevent future blackouts, he added.

In the Sayre fire, enough volunteers from fire companies in surrounding towns were finally rounded up to fight the house fire. But the house, owned by Ernest Morvay Jr., was gutted.

"The trial list just fell apart," said an aide in Allegheny County Court, after hunting forced postponement of at least four trials.

"I don't approve of it," Judge Samuel Strauss said, noting that at least one policeman, and possibly more, went hunting instead of going to court. "But the public shouldn't be harmed by dismissing a case just because police have gone hunting."

State police say the hunter, William Hans of Danville, was in satisfactory condition after his .357 magnum pistol fired while he was taking it out of his holster.

Authorized spending

Ford may cut federal programs $839 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is proposing elimination of $839 million in authorized federal spending, with most of the cuts aimed at housing and rural aid programs already approved by Congress.

Ford also asked Congress on Monday to defer spending of $253 million, postponing several antipollution and agricultural research projects and putting off the purchase of an airplane for NASA administrators.

To date, Congress has rejected most of Ford's recommendations for rescinding spending authorizations.

The spending cutback proposal was announced in a White House statement with comments by Ford, who is in China.

"The legislative and executive branches must continually weigh the contribution made by each federal program carefully against the limited resources available," Ford said. "To make room for necessary new spending, we must eliminate federal spending for programs that are no longer needed, that duplicate other programs or that can be financed from other sources.

The 13 new spending cutbacks would bring to 27 the number of programs that would be cut under Ford proposals.

The 18 new deferrals would bring spending postponements to 85, for a total of $3.8 billion.

The largest single budget elimination Ford asked is $600 million in Housing and Urban Development money to subsidize interest payments for state housing finance and development agencies.

He said the cutbacks need not affect the activity of the state agencies, which subsidize middle and low-income housing projects, because state backing of agency securities would lower borrowing costs.

The second largest cut proposed by Ford is $150,000 from the Farmers

Gateway

Home Administration budget for water disposal grants.

Other cuts would come in programs for business and industrial loans in rural America, housing for farm workers and for fire fighting improvements in rural areas.

Ford also proposed cuts of $5.2 million from the Consumer Product Safety Commission budget, which would force the commission to operate in 1976 at 1975 spending levels.

Among his targets for spending deferrals are a cattle quarantine facility, rural water and waste disposal grants and field assistance in the soil conservation programs.

Other spending postponements would delay grants to state and local agencies for clean air programs as well as state and interstate water pollution control programs and funding for clean lakes projects.

Ford also proposed deferral of $28 million spending from the $305-million budget for Indochina refugee assistance.

Goldwater on Reagan radio show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., will take over as regular commentator on the "Viewpoint" radio show started last January by Ronald Reagan, the show's producer announced today.

The former California governor left the radio show Nov. 20 when he announced his candidacy for the GOP nomination for president in 1976.

Harry O'Connor, producer of the show, said the first Goldwater broadcasts were taped in Washington the day after Reagan announced his candidacy.

Since Nov. 20, a series of guest hosts has been filling in on the five-minute, five-days-a-week show, distributed to 320 radio stations by the Mutual Broadcasting Network.

The guest hosts have included Reagan's eldest daughter, Maureen, editor William F. Buckley Jr., former Pueblo skipper, Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher and former President Richard Nixon's daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower.

Zumwalt says Russ violate arms talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Chief of Naval Operations Elmo R. Zumwalt says the Soviet Union has turned strategic arms limitation talks into a "grotesque mockery" and that information outlining Russian violations is being withheld from President Ford.

Zumwalt told the House intelligence committee on Tuesday that Ford has not mastered details of the arms limitation agreements on his own and that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has been less than candid in explaining the violations to the President.

Specifically, Zumwalt said the Soviets had violated the arms agreements by interfering with U.S. means for monitoring compliance and by testing missile detection radar. Zumwalt told the committee he would explain further during a closed session. He did say the interference concerned U.S. long-range radar.

Zumwalt's allegations were challenged by several panel members, but all his charges were not covered during the public session.

These violations, Zumwalt said, involved Soviet building of additional and larger missile defenses, deployment of mobile missiles and building of larger missiles.

On the mobile missiles, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said his information was that the missiles, while potentially mobile, had not been moved from fixed positions and that no violation had occurred.

"If they do (deploy the missile) it would be cheating," Zumwalt said. "Is developing the capability cheating?"

asked Rep. James P. Johnson, R-Colo.

"No," Zumwalt said. On the silos, Aspin observed that while they may have been enlarged, no missiles have been detected which violate the agreements.

Rep. Dale Milford, D-Texas, told Zumwalt his criticism of the Ford administration and the arms accords seemed to coincide with the retired admiral's plans to run for the U.S. Senate in Virginia.

"Purely political," said Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., when asked his opinion of Zumwalt's testimony.

Zumwalt charged that Ford has not been told of Soviet violations because Kissinger has a personal political stake in the agreements. Since he helped in negotiating the accords, Kissinger does not want the violations known to the President, Zumwalt said.

He said former Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger told him in June 1974 that Kissinger had given him instructions not to report similar evidence of Soviet violations to then-President Richard M. Nixon.

Meanwhile, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Daniel P. Moynihan charged Tuesday that the Soviets are making military moves in the newly independent nation of Angola because they intend to colonize Africa.

Speaking to a meeting sponsored by the Fund for Peace and the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, Moynihan also accused the Soviets of playing a major role in the recent United Nations resolution equating Zionism, a movement for establishment of a Jewish homeland, with racism.

The amazing Mercedes-Benz 450SE. Take a good, close look. You've never seen anything like it.

Here's a walk-around checklist for one of the most important sedans ever engineered by Mercedes-Benz — or by anyone else. It'll help you see, firsthand, why the 450SE defies imitation ... and why it deserves your closest consideration.

1. Start here. Look at the trunk space. An uncluttered 18.2 cubic feet. Spare tire is stored out of the way, flat under the floor, where it can also serve as an additional impact-absorbing device.

2. Heated rear window. Automatic timer prevents wasted energy. Tinted glass all around. Standard equipment.

3. Rain channels use airflow to divert rainwater from side and rear windows.

4. Chrome strip/side protection molding is rubber-mounted to eliminate metal-to-metal contact.

5. Interior is fully padded for safety and sumptuousness. Sealed against noise and heat. Four different sound-absorbing materials.

6. Maximum-visibility windshield. All-around visibility in the 450SE totals 313". Overlapping windshield wipers clear 73 percent of the entire windshield.

7. Steel-belted radial tires. Standard equipment.

8. Safety bumpers, rubber protected, hydraulic-regenerative. Front and rear.

Halogen fog lights. Standard equipment.

14. Aerodynamically ribbed rear lights use airflow to stay clear in foul weather or on dusty roads.

13. Cockpit. Control panel has full instrumentation. Tachometer, quartz crystal clock, cruise control, AM-FM stereo radio, electrically operated windows are all standard equipment.

12. Safety cone door locks. So strong that one of them can support the weight of the entire 450SE.

11. Central locking system. Locks all doors, trunk and gas filler port at the turn of a key.

10. The outside rearview mirror. Distortion-free, folds full forward and rear for pedestrian safety. Large, inside rearview mirror folds and breaks away on impact for driver and passenger safety.

The amazing Mercedes-Benz 450SE. Now, look at 8 things you don't see. You've still never seen anything like it.

You'll experience and appreciate some of them during your test drive. (Your Dealer can arrange it at your convenience.)
The others are special Mercedes-Benz bonuses.
All of them are standard equipment.

15. Automatic Climate Control maintains a preselected temperature; dehumidifies, heats and cools.

16. Undercoating extends up to the rocker molding for extra protection. The underside of the 450SE is buffered by four different materials including anti-corrosion wax and almost 24 pounds of plasticized vinyl.

17. A unique engine. A trim 4.5 liter, overhead camshaft V-8 with a breakerless, transistorized ignition system and an all-new, mechanically operated fuel injection system that maintains optimum fuel/air mixture at all times.

18. Fully independent front and rear suspension. They set new handling standards—even for Mercedes-Benz. No domestic sedan has anything like them. They combine with the sophisticated Mercedes-Benz recirculating ball-type power steering to give you extraordinary control at all times.

19. Power disc brakes on all four wheels. The brakes are ventilated—then further cooled by special turboblades. They are designed to stop you smoothly, securely time after time—without disconcerting fade.

22. Safety advances. The entire passenger compartment is protected by collapsible extremities and a rigid steel shell. The shell is an enormously strong, welded structure. The roof alone can sustain over 5 tons weight. The gas tank is mounted over the rear axle, nearly four feet in from the rear bumper, and surrounded by steel bulkheads. The gas filler pipe is designed to pinch closed on impact.

21. Remarkably smooth automatic transmission, 3 speeds, with torque converter. You shift without interrupting power flow and can even override the automatic to shift manually within proper engine speed ranges.

20. Retained value. Based on the average official used car prices over the past 5 years, Mercedes-Benz holds its value better than any make of luxury car sold in America. And among Mercedes-Benz models listed, the 450SE's figures are outstanding.

Junior high girls get lesson in grooming themselves, their image

Twenty-five seventh grade girls from Palomares Junior High School in Pomona are learning to improve their self-concept in a personal grooming course co-sponsored by the Pomona Unified School District's Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) project and the American National Red Cross.

The course is directed by LaVonne Caldwell, ESAA parent involvement specialist, and Sharon DuRousseau, Red Cross consultant.

"One of the goals of the ESAA project is to improve self-concept in all youngsters. In this course, which we're calling 'You're You and That's Beautiful,' the girls are learning elements of personal grooming that will help to raise their images of themselves," Mrs. Caldwell explained.

A series of six weekly classes is being given on Wednesday afternoons at the school through Dec. 17.

Subjects include self-concept, hygiene, nutrition, hair care and cosmetics, and coordinating clothing on a budget. The final class will be a fashion show, with parents invited.

Speakers who will address class sessions include Beret Mason and Seleta Johnson, home economists for ESAA's pilot project; Jan Arais from Montgomery Ward's Wendy Ward course; a model from the John Robert Powers Modeling School; and Doris Daffen, a local parent and modeling club sponsor who will coordinate the fashion show.

During the course the girls will receive cosmetics kits, and a drawing will be held for four free hair styles given by the Park Avenue High Cosmetology School.

Plans are being made to offer the class at other ESAA junior high schools in the future. Parents are invited to attend any or all of the sessions. For further information, Mrs. Caldwell of the parent involvement staff can be contacted at 621-5027.

Ex-Pomonan to head state medical examiners board

A former Pomonan, Dr. Gary S. Nye of Orinda, has been elected president-elect of the California State Board of Medical Examiners.

Dr. Nye is expected to assume the presidency Jan. 1 pending the final makeup of the board, reorganized in December as the Board of Medical Quality Assurance. The reorganization was mandated by recent legislation dealing with medical insurance procedures in California.

Dr. Nye has been vice president of the board for the past year. He is a past psychiatrist in private practice in Orinda and is assistant clinical professor of psychiatry at the UC Medical Center in San Francisco.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Nye of Pomona, Dr. Nye graduated from Pomona High School and Pomona College. He received his medical degree at the University of Mississippi.

He and his wife, the former Ann O'Connell, are parents of a son, Seth, 7 months old.

'Christian' escapes; jailer quits

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — A jailer who freed a Clark County inmate because he said he believed the man's claim of being a "true Christian" says he resigned because he doesn't want to embarrass the sheriff.

"He said he was a true Christian, and he wouldn't do anything to hurt me," said former jailer Waldo Wainright of longhorne inmate Ray Alan Williams.

Williams, 28, of Sacramento, Calif., was last seen Thursday when he and a companion, riding in a limousine Williams rented by phone, arrived at Portland's airport.

"I pray for him," said Wainright, who describes himself as a devout Christian and "kind of a soft heart."

Williams, who was being held for federal authorities on grand larceny and interstate transport of stolen auto charges, told Wainright that he has business dealings with Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz. He told the jailer that he had to leave for the appointment.

With Wainright's permission, he telephoned a limousine rental agency and left when the vehicle arrived.

"I hope and pray he gets straightened out some day," said Wainright of Williams.

Wainright turned in his badge Friday because he felt his continued work "would be an embarrassment to the sheriff's office." He was a probationary employee in his fourth month of work.

Now, Wainright said, he has learned much about human nature.

"I feel the Lord will lead me in the right direction," Sheriff Gene Cotton said that he was "surprised to the point of disbelief" when he heard about the incident. He said he is satisfied that the escape was not an inside job.

He said no one should be allowed out of jail unless he possesses a court order.

Fair chief presides at annual meeting

Phil D. Shepherd, general manager of the Los Angeles County Fair, Pomona, and current president of the International Association of Fairs and Expositions, presided this week at the international group's 65th annual convention at Las Vegas.

Shepherd was elected president of the organization at its 1974 convention. He previously was vice president.

The association, founded in 1890, is an organization of state, district and county fairs in the United States and Canada.

Shepherd said that the current convention emphasized many advances in fair operations and fair-ground construction.

Special treatment, he said, will stress the upgrading of fair operations to keep pace with the ever-changing picture in agriculture, industry and entertainment.

Pathet Lao plans to end monarchy

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — The Communist Pathet Lao is preparing to abolish the Laotian monarchy, announce the end of the 19-month-old coalition government and shelve Prince Souvanna Phouma after 13 years as premier, informed sources said today.

The sources said 68-year-old King Savang Vathana had decided to abdicate following reports that the Pathet Lao was determined to abolish the monarchy and put all people, including members of the royal family, to work in the fields.

In recent weeks, 37 members of the royal family, including the king's youngest son, Prince Soriyawong, have fled to Thailand, en route to France.

Diplomatic reports said Souvanna Phouma, a cousin of the king, was planning to resign and go to France. The 74-year-old prince, a neutralist whose half-brother is the titular leader of the Pathet Lao, has been virtually powerless since the Communists took control of the government last spring.

Vientiane, the administrative capital, was calm today following a series of well-organized demonstrations with people chanting and waving banners demanding the end of the coalition government.

It appeared the general public was not aware of the imminent abdication.

"If the king goes, it is going to disturb a lot of people, but they have no choice," said one Western diplomat.

Western sources said the king was in Luang Prabang, the royal capital 135 miles north of Vientiane.

Informed sources said Acting Foreign Minister Phoume Sipaseuth on Monday informed an assembly of Western diplomats, United Nations representatives and the International Control Commission of the impending end of the coalition government.

However, the conservative and neutralist members of the cabinet had been only figureheads for months.

A broadcast from Hanoi on Monday, quoting the Pathet Lao's Khaosan news agency, said a new "administrative committee" in Vientiane has adopted a program "aimed at the complete abolition of the old corrupt regime ... and the building of a new regime in which the people are masters."

The broadcast said the new committee "will resolutely lead the people to get rid of the U.S. neo-colonialist economy while duly punishing all acts which run counter to the financial and commercial regulations put forth by the new administration."

Foreign ministry officials said the members of the People's Congress would meet and cancel the 19-month-old coalition government. Western sources said the Pathet Lao's rationale was that the coalition of neutralists, conservatives and Communists was set up for the purpose of national reconciliation, that reconciliation has been accomplished and therefore the reason for the coalition's existence is ended.

The coalition government formed April 5, 1974, was the third such government Souvanna Phouma put together. The second had come apart a decade earlier, and in the interim the Vientiane government's army fought a losing war with the Pathet Lao despite massive economic and military aid from the United States.

About 50,000 Laotians have fled from their country since the Communist takeover last spring.

Savang Vathana, a direct descendant of the 1,000-year-old South China dynasty of Khoun Lo, has been a popular figure in Laos ever since he came to the throne in 1959 on the death of his father, King Sisavang Vong.

The French-educated king visited the United States in 1947 and again in 1961 when as crown prince he led the Laotian delegation to the San Francisco peace conference with Japan.

In recent years the king and queen, who have five children, have lived quietly in the royal palace in Luang Prabang.

Prince Souvanna Phouma, educated in French schools in Hanoi and in France, served the French in Indochina from 1930 to 1949, when he became premier of the semi-autonomous kingdom. He was elected premier in 1966 after having signed a truce with the Pathet Lao and presided over elections. He has headed the Vientiane government for 20 of the last 24 years.

Despite a decade of U.S. backing, Souvanna has not been a militant anti-Communist. He was above all a neutralist, with a record of struggles with rightist generals and some harsh words against both U.S. and North Vietnamese interference in the internal affairs of his country.

Souvanna Phouma's half brother, Prince Souphanouvong, also French-educated, fought with the Communist-led Vietminh against the French and Japanese during World War II. In 1951 he organized the Pathet Lao and assumed control of two provinces along North Vietnamese border.

But his position within the Pathet Lao has always been subject to speculation, and his leadership status may largely have been due to his acceptability by many Laos as a doting, passionate man of the people.

Governor General Sir John Kerr, the queen's representative, dismissed Whitlam after Fraser's coalition, which controls the Senate, blocked Whitlam's 1975-76 budget for 28 days and the government began running out of money.

Whitlam claims the House of Representatives, which the Laborites controlled, has the exclusive right to make and unmake governments.

There are the usual buttons and bumper stickers including "I'm a Liberal lover" for Fraser's supporters and the sarcastic "Fraser, you're really beginning to scare me" from the Labor camp. Advertising agencies for both parties are hard at work.

Bumper stickers brought grief to a group of Labor supporters in Canberra, the federal capital. Liberal supporters, who often accuse Labor people of Socialist leanings, poured red paint over the stickers and the rest of the cars.

Liberal men, who accuse the Liberals of being in the palm of big business and foreign monopolies, got in their licks by kicking in the sides of a luxury automobile in Sydney.

Fraser's Liberals are stressing Australia's 12.6 per cent inflation rate and the 5 per cent jobless rate — twice last year's — in the 6-million-member work force. They claim the Labor government could have shielded Australia far better from worldwide recession.

Whitlam maintains his government did the best it could under the economic conditions, and is directing most of his effort at claiming Fraser's forces unseated him in a "bloodless coup d'etat" that defied all Australian political conventions.

The nation's seven million voters are rallying behind either Labor party leader Gough Whitlam, who was fired as prime minister Nov. 11 by Queen Elizabeth's representative, or behind the caretaker government under Malcolm Fraser's Liberal party.

OUT OF DANGER — Seagulls, once an endangered species as hunters sought them for food and feathers, have proliferated to the point where some people regard them as pests. This picture, taken in Maine by Christopher Ayres, is from a new book, "Gulls: a Social History."

Victim tossed off of bridge

CHICAGO (AP) — Two youths accosted Theodore Sterling, rifled his pockets and "casually tossed" him over the railing of a Chicago River bridge to his death, police report.

The body of Sterling, 44, a part-time postal worker, was found in the river about 40 minutes after witnesses said they saw him robbed and beaten on a bridge and thrown over the railing by two youths.

"I waited and waited," said his mother, Almeda Sterling, 69. "His supper got cold. Then the police came and told me my son was dead. But how he died — I just can't believe it."

Witnesses said two youths approached Sterling on Monday as he was crossing the Van Buren Street bridge, one of the many drawbridges over the Chicago River that flows around the heart of the city.

The witnesses told police Sterling was "casually tossed over the railing." They said he clung to one of his assailant's arms, "but the youth shook his arm free" and the man plunged 22 feet to his death. The assailants fled.

A plastic postal identification badge was found on a chain around the neck of the body. It was the only means of identification, police said.

At least two of the witnesses were postal workers.

"We have five good witnesses," said a police spokesman. "We are trying to make a composite picture of the assailants."

Sterling was a bachelor and lived with his mother. Mrs. Sterling said her son "had no enemies, just lots of friends and he loved his job with the post office."

Never divided

When the Republic of Texas was annexed to the United States in 1845, it was given the option of dividing itself into as many as five states. This never occurred because of the fight to keep a balance between slave-holding and nonslave-holding states.

Australian election campaign bitter

By THOMAS KENT Associated Press Writer SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — From the streets of Sydney to the lonely outback, Australia is going through the most bitter and costly election campaign in its 74 years as a nation.

With each major party claiming in all seriousness that dictatorship and economic ruin will ensue unless it is elected, feelings are running high and tempers short as the country approaches election day Dec. 13.

Angry taxi drivers in Sydney have pressed their two-way radios into the political battle, shouting "Rubbish!" and "You mug!" at anyone in the next cab who doesn't like their party. Party supporters are being urged to buy "bronze loyalty plaques" — at $190 apiece — with the image of their leader.

The Labor party says it expects to spend the equivalent in Australian currency of $952,000 and sources in the conservative Liberal party say they figure their expenses will run about $1.3 million for the three-week campaign. Both say this is the largest they have ever spent on an election.

Individual candidates for the House of Representatives and the Senate are limited to $630 each but this law is winked at by practically everyone.

The nation's seven million voters are rallying behind either Labor party leader Gough Whitlam, who was fired as prime minister Nov. 11 by Queen Elizabeth's representative, or behind the caretaker government under Malcolm Fraser's Liberal party.

Liberal men, who accuse the Liberals of being in the palm of big business and foreign monopolies, got in their licks by kicking in the sides of a luxury automobile in Sydney.

Fraser's Liberals are stressing Australia's 12.6 per cent inflation rate and the 5 per cent jobless rate — twice last year's — in the 6-million-member work force. They claim the Labor government could have shielded Australia far better from worldwide recession.

Whitlam maintains his government did the best it could under the economic conditions, and is directing most of his effort at claiming Fraser's forces unseated him in a "bloodless coup d'etat" that defied all Australian political conventions.

The nation's seven million voters are rallying behind either Labor party leader Gough Whitlam, who was fired as prime minister Nov. 11 by Queen Elizabeth's representative, or behind the caretaker government under Malcolm Fraser's Liberal party.

There are the usual buttons and bumper stickers including "I'm a Liberal lover" for Fraser's supporters and the sarcastic "Fraser, you're really beginning to scare me" from the Labor camp. Advertising agencies for both parties are hard at work.

Bumper stickers brought grief to a group of Labor supporters in Canberra, the federal capital. Liberal supporters, who often accuse Labor people of Socialist leanings, poured red paint over the stickers and the rest of the cars.

Wiretap files

Fear of blackmail by Hoover disclosed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon personally ordered secret files on wiretaps of newsmen and government officials moved from the Justice Department to the White House for fear that FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover would use them for "blackmail," John D. Ehrlichman says.

Ehrlichman, who was a top aide to the resigned president, said Nixon had been urged to move the files to the White House by Robert C. Mardian, the assistant attorney general in charge of the records.

In a deposition filed Monday in connection with a suit challenging the legality of the wiretaps, Ehrlichman said Mardian was afraid of the late FBI director and worried that he might send his agents to break into the office and remove the files.

He said Mardian feared he might be harmed by Hoover or his agents.

Ehrlichman testified that Hoover "was not above blackmailing the President" and that he might use the wiretap files "to secure whatever he wanted from the President," including a guarantee that his job would be protected.

The wiretap files were removed from Mardian's office in 1971. They were found in 1973 in a White House safe.

Ehrlichman's deposition was filed in a suit by former White House aide

Morton Halperin, whose telephone was tapped for 21 months in an attempt by the White House to halt information leaks to the press. The telephones of 17 newsmen also were tapped.

The government contends the taps were legal and proper use of a president's authority to protect national security.

Ehrlichman said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger picked Halperin as one of those to be tapped because he saw Halperin as "singularly untrustworthy" and noted "defects in his philosophy."

Asked what was meant by "defects in philosophy," Ehrlichman answered, "He was philosophically in disagreement with Dr. Kissinger and the President on matters of policy."

Ehrlichman recalled talks with Nixon in which it was decided that the wiretap data could be politically embarrassing, "and Hoover wasn't above blackmailing the President with this information."

He said Nixon ordered the files made "secure from the director of the FBI through their destruction."

But Ehrlichman said the tapes remained in Mardian's office for several weeks. Finally, Ehrlichman said, he got a call asking him to meet Mardian at his home.

"So after church I drove to his house and he told me that he was very afraid of not only the integrity of these files, but also of his personal safety, that he felt he was being surveilled by Hoover through his agents, and it was only a matter of time before Hoover caused agents of the FBI to break into his files and recover the various records of this activity...."

Ehrlichman said that some time after Nixon told him to take possession of the files, the Secret Service bought a safe and special alarm sensors to secure the files in the White House.

Tree thief tracked down

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — A determined state conservation officer who stalked a black walnut tree thief for 38 days over hundreds of miles has found his man.

Officer Donald Spicer worked undercover in a battered hat and old raincoat, traveling through three states in pursuit of the person who stole two 50-foot black walnut trees from the Waterloo State Recreation Area northeast of Jackson.

Last week Dennis Tesner, 23, a log hauler from Farmington, pleaded guilty of violating a state timber trespass law. He was fined $700 and put on probation for four years for taking the century-old trees.

"Stealing the trees was bad enough, but what really upset me was the way he did it," the 45-year-old Spicer said Monday.

"They were the kind of trees you'd look up at and just be awestruck," he said. "They were big and old and beautiful. And he butchered them."

Spicer said the thief took two sections of the tree trunks and left the branches and other parts strewn over a road.

"It was like someone killing a deer and taking only the hind quarters," said Spicer, who has been with the Department of Natural Resources for almost 20 years.

The day after the trees were cut, Spicer took the top part of one stump, marred by two rot holes. He planned to match the stump with the missing log.

He began his investigation in Toledo, where some 4,000 black walnut logs are exported each week to Europe. For days he checked log piles there, and finally discovered a log which perfectly matched his stump.

"I saw that stolen log on the top of a pile and I got it down. And, man, when my piece matched up with it perfectly, I started leaping up and down on that dock," he said.

He traced the log to an export company in southern Indiana, through a trucking company, a Michigan wholesaler, the original supplier in Detroit and finally to Tesner himself.

Tesner said he sold the logs for $2,000 because he needed some quick cash.

Lilienthal blames inertia for America's lack of power

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — David Lilienthal's cool control belied his distress. "I'm mad as hell this morning," he said, rising from his desk and handing his listener a brief article clipped from the morning newspaper.

The story told of plans to erect near Belleville, Ill. a $237 million pilot plant for the conversion of coal to synthetic crude oil and "natural" gas. Government and private industry would split the initial costs.

"What in hell have we been doing these past 24 years," said Lilienthal, who as chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority and first Atomic Energy Commission chairman, learned you must always be on guard against inertia.

He referred to Page 246, "Volume Three, The Journals of David E. Lilienthal," in which he describes the technology of coal conversion and relates that a private group was ready to build a much larger plant. That was in 1951.

The technology was available then, he said. Informed people knew an alternative to oil was desirable. And an investment banking house, Eberstadt & Co., was willing to raise $400 million if assured by government of minimum prices. "If we meant business that plant would have been built, and through private financing," he said. Other plants would have followed, costs would have fallen, and today we might have had a "very comfortable" alternative to foreign oil.

Now, in the midst of crisis, he said, we finally get moving on a much smaller plant. There was bite but not scorn in his quiet voice. "There is a timidity, a lack of resolution in the decision centers," he said deliberately. For the past 20 years Lilienthal, 76, has headed his own company, Development and Resources Corp., a unique concern that combines private enterprise and public goals in the large scale, integrated development of natural resources.

One glittering example is the Khuzestan Province of Iran, as large as Illinois, whose land and people were made to blossom by the development of water power, electricity, irrigation, farming, industry, health care facilities and education. You don't get things done by writing reports, said Lilienthal, briefly recalling his TVA days, when he learned that nothing fails like disbelief and that action itself, even in a small way, always is more convincing than talk.

"We're constipated by reports," he said. In his opinion we're also paralyzed by negativism, and imbued with an attitude unbecoming Americans, that problems are too big to handle.

"Our leaders, public and private, are timid and slow and this becomes contagious," he said.

"We're holding ourselves back. If we let ourselves go we have the human energy and resources to do anything we want to do. Human energy distinguishes this country." This nation, he said, is underdeveloped, yet we act as if we can do no more.

"Energy is a basic characteristic of a country," he said. "If you've got it in the people they produce the electricity and the gas — and the food and the rest of the country's needs." He stopped abruptly, fearful he said that people might think he was preaching. Preaching and moralizing, you gathered, were about as useless to him as computer printouts that never were read.

Instead, he said, he'd rather talk about specifics first, generalities later. It is in doing something specific — not talking about it or reporting it or analyzing it — that sets the example to follow, he said.

He gave an illustration: His company had access to a roomful of reports in 1961 that told why commercial coal wouldn't be found in certain parts of the Rocky Mountains. A man investigated. "He walked and walked and walked." He found it.

If we must write reports, he said, we should at least make them appealing not to statisticians but to businessmen "who will be willing to stake their money or reputation or company — reports a man will move on."

Referring to admonitions to save rather than use energy, he declared: "What this country needs is more, not less energy. We can't dally. If we do we'll become more and more dependent on foreign oil."

We cannot, he emphasized, wait 24 years more. "In order for the nation to have a major reliance on coal for fuel, feedstocks, gas, gasoline and oil, we need more than just a relatively little plant in Illinois."

He concluded: "Momentum is the secret of American development. If we wait we lose it. I intend to speak out about it. This is the opening."

Retarded may aid dentists

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The University of Pennsylvania has launched a program to train mentally retarded young adults to assist dentists in preparing patients, developing X rays, sterilizing instruments and maintaining equipment.

The program, billed as the first of its kind, "is a badly needed manpower force for the dental profession and gainful opportunity for the development of such disabled people," said Dr. D. Walter Cohen, dean of Penn's School of Dental Medicine.

Dr. Patricia P. Cormier, project director, said "it offers possibilities for people who have been denied opportunity in this area up until this time."

Six young women, aged 20 to 24 who never reached junior high school, are in the first class for dental assistant aids — DAIDS — that began this week. All were selected with the help of the Elwyn Institute, a well-known rehabilitation center for the mentally retarded.

Next year, for the second six-month-long class, 12 more young women will be enrolled. Dr. Cormier envisions at least another 12 for the third year, possibly including some men.

Dr. Cormier said she believes the school is developing a curriculum that can be passed on to other institutions.

"But we have a lot of work to do in this first year and surely will not have a package ready for at least some time after that," she added.

Dr. Cormier says that part of the classroom techniques will be taught by Penn dental students, giving them a chance to interact with mentally retarded "so they won't be afraid of this in their own practices and won't reject such people when they look for employees."

The skills that are being taught are repetitive but important. Dr. Cormier emphasizes, and Penn has guaranteed the students will get jobs when they finish the curriculum, which includes 180 hours of preclinical orientation and around 600 hours of clinical assisting.

"I foresee no reason why they wouldn't be able to function in the environment of group or hospital-based dental practices, university dental schools, or even in private practice where there would be a dentist, dental assistant and receptionist, and the DAID would proudly assume the overall general tasks that are vital but tedious for most other people," Dr. Cormier says.

A Christmas Tale by D. Floreck and D. Baur

Almanac

Today is Wednesday, Dec. 3, the 337th day of 1975. There are 28 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1967, surgeons at a Cape Town, South Africa hospital reported a successful human heart transplant, the first of its kind.

On this date: In 1808, Madrid surrendered to French forces under Napoleon.

In 1818, the former Confederate President, Jefferson Davis, was put on trial for treason in the U.S. Circuit Court for Virginia.

In 1894, the Scottish writer, Robert Louis Stevenson, died in Samoa.

In 1944, in World War II, American troops crossed the Saar River in Germany.

In 1962, London was blanketed by one of the worst fogs in years. Scores of people died of sulphur dioxide poisoning before the fog lifted four days later.

In 1964, police at Berkeley arrested 796 University of California students in removing demonstrators from the school administration building.

Ten years ago: The National Council of Churches called for a halt in the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam long enough to create more favorable circumstances for peace negotiations.

Five years ago: The U.S. Senate rejected any new government spending for development of a supersonic transport plane.

One year ago: The U.S. Senate and House of Representatives voted overwhelmingly to override President Ford's veto of a bill to increase educational benefits for veterans since the end of the Korean War.

Today's birthday: Singer Maria Callas is 52 years old.

Thought for today: To be 70 years young is sometimes far more cheerful and hopeful than to be 40 years old — Oliver Wendell Holmes, American writer, 1809-1894.

Arthritics must practice safety within the home

By Becky Highstreet

Arthritis Foundation

Safety is something an arthritis sufferer must learn to live with. As an arthritic, you are more susceptible to certain "risk areas" within the home. But there are ways you can protect yourself, and your household, by guarding against possible injury. According to the Arthritis Foundation, these hints offer safe and simple solutions to problems presented by daily activities.

Bathing may be a relaxing way to soothe tired joints, but you should arrange the bathing area for safe entrance into and out of the bathtub. Sturdy grab bars should be fitted along the walls of the bathtub or shower. A towel bar cannot be depended upon to hold body weight.

Similarly, a chair can be placed in the bathtub enabling you to sit while you take a shower. Approximately three inches should be cut off of each chair leg, with rubber suction tips fitted on the ends. A sliding board, situated between the wheelchair and bathtub, can be used when it is impossible to climb into the tub.

By placing a rubber suction mat on the floor of the bathtub or shower, you can reduce the added risk of slipping. If your bathroom floor is made out of linoleum or tile, a nonskid bathmat should also be placed outside the bathtub.

The kitchen is another area of the home where safety deserves top billing. If you have a gas oven, and it is not possible to bend down, long matches can be used to light it. The matches are available at most gift shops.

Stirring hot foods, such as soup or stew, can be dangerous if you are unable to grab the handle of the pan. By placing a filled teakettle up against the cookware, the kettle will help stabilize it.

For breakable items, such as glasses, terry cloth coasters used on tumblers prevent them from sliding out of your hands. The coasters can be made from material purchased at a yardage store.

A baster safely transfers liquids to and from a pan. For the arthritic, this offers a simple solution to the painstaking problem of trying to pour liquids. The baster requires light pressure from the heel of the hands, giving sore fingers a rest.

Throughout the house, there are potential "fall items": these include cords, rugs and other paraphernalia positioned in a walkway. A cord shortener is an inexpensive device that will hold up to three feet of excess cord. These can be purchased from various mail order houses. Rug grippers, available at both hardware and department stores, will help secure the rug to the floor.

Safety with ease should be an ongoing program. It requires alert thinking and careful planning but your comfort is worth it.

Some of these hints are excerpts from a manual prepared by the Allied Health Professions Section of the Arthritis Foundation.

Nickel tops in Louisville

Chances are 10 to one that somebody who makes a 10-cent phone call here will use two nickels.

Louisvillians and their respect for the 5-cent piece are posing peculiar problems for the Federal Reserve Bank. Dimes go begging in Louisville, while banks want to stock up on nickels.

Yippies to be at GOP convention

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Republicans won't be the only political party in town when they hold their 1976 presidential convention here next August.

The Yippies, who helped get the 1968 Democratic National Convention off to a roaring start, will also be in attendance.

"Just as we were united before against dictatorship in Southeast Asia, protestors next summer will be united against the old priorities of bigger bombers, more police surveillance and subsidies for energy fatcats which continue, no matter what front man replaces Ford," declared Yippie spokesman A. J. Weberman at a news conference Monday.

The group, formally known as the Youth International Party, set up shop at a house in an old southside neighborhood over the weekend to begin preparing for the GOP convention.

Their plans, according to Weberman, include trying to secure use of a park near the arena as an operating base and refusing to pay a $1 convention tax on hotel rooms in Kansas City.

Weberman predicted several thousand protestors would attend the GOP demonstration, including representatives from the Gay Liberation Front and Students for a Democratic Society.

Weberman forecast attempts by others to incite violence and blame it on his group, but he said the Yippies hoped for a peaceful demonstration.

Weberman, co-author of a book about the Central Intelligence Agency's alleged role in the Kennedy assassination, presented photographic overlays at the news conference showing a purported resemblance between persons present at the Kennedy assassination and figures in the Watergate incident.

Mailing ban on firearms is upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Tuesday unanimously upheld a federal law prohibiting the mailing of firearms "capable of being concealed on the person," rejecting the argument that the law is unconstitutionally vague.

"It intelligibly forbids a definite course of conduct: the mailing of concealable firearms," Justice William H. Rehnquist wrote for the court.

The court reversed a U.S. circuit court decision striking down the conviction of Josephine M. Powell of Spokane, Wash., on a charge of mailing a sawed-off shotgun. Mrs. Powell was sentenced to two years in prison.

The Supreme Court said that the law gave Mrs. Powell "adequate warning that her mailing of a sawed-off shotgun of some 22 inches in length was a criminal offense."

Stevens' confirmation a 'sure thing'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nomination of John Paul Stevens to the Supreme Court appears to face only the question of when rather than whether the Senate will confirm him, according to preliminary indications.

President Ford's selection thus far has met with generally favorable reaction in the legal community and in Congress, where so far there have been no signs of serious opposition to the nomination. The Senate Judiciary Committee is to begin hearings Dec. 8 on Stevens, who is Ford's first nominee to the high court. Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said Monday. Stevens, a member of the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals sitting in Chicago, met Monday with Eastland and ranking minority committee member Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., as part of the traditional courtesy call on senators. Stevens was accompanied by White House counsel Philip Buchen and presidential aide John O. Marsh Jr. After a lengthy conversation, Eastland emerged to say Stevens seemed "very pleasant and capable." Eastland said that if the committee's hearings are to be completed before Congress leaves for Christmas recess, there will have to be practically no opposition. Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., deputy majority leader and a member of the Judiciary Committee, said he doubted the Senate could act on the nomination before adjourning, especially if recess begins Dec. 12. Byrd told reporters there would be a better chance if, as appears likely, adjournment is delayed until Dec. 19. In naming the 55-year-old jurist to the court, Ford said he hoped the Senate would act promptly to bring the court to full strength. Stevens was nominated to fill the seat of retired Justice William O. Douglas. Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott, R-Pa., and a member of the Judiciary Committee, said all he has read about Stevens has been favorable. And Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., the deputy GOP leader, told the Senate that Stevens has a distinguished record and expressed hope the Judiciary Committee and the Senate will expedite consideration of the nomination. Byrd said he knows nothing about Stevens.

FIRE PATH SHOWN

Foresters work to avoid winter floodings

"We're no longer looking at a disaster, but at all the problems it can cause this winter."

Thus Forest Ranger Steve Fitch summed up the damages of the massive 19,500-acre fire which swept west across the San Gabriel Mountains from Mt. Baldy Village, starting Nov. 23.

Fitch estimated that the total cost of damage to the watershed and structures plus the expense of firefighting and reseeding will be about $3.4 million.

The major problem now is the fear of flooding of some 150 unprotected homes in Palmer Canyon and in upper San Dimas Canyon beyond the area protected by a dam.

Forest service officials are studying the problems of the fire which began as the result of two cabins burning in Mt. Baldy Village. Sparks from the fires were picked up by high Santa Ana winds and blown into the thick brush above and to the west of the village.

"This fire was especially bad in that when it reached into Cow Canyon, it split into two major blazes and ate through watershed which had not been burned in more

He added that there are still 150 firefighters mopping up some 20 miles of hot spots in the interior canyons. These men are being transported by helicopters into the remote areas, Fitch said.

The U.S. Corps of Engineers and the Los Angeles County Flood Control District are working with the U.S. Forest Service to map out flood controls. The groups say that in the San Gabriel, San Dimas, Big Dalton and San Antonio canyons, the basins have been cleared and will probably be able to handle the debris that will wash down from the denuded hillsides.

"That is, unless we get great amounts of rain like we did in 1969," added Fitch.

Dick Serino, a forest ranger brought in from Northern California to assist during the disastrous fire, credited the fuel breaks with reducing the extent of the fire.

He explained that a fuel break differs from a fire break in that it is not totally stripped of vegetation, but has a grass cover to prevent erosion.

"The fuel breaks give us a place to stand and fight," Serino said. "We can run 'cats' up them, and use them as a point to start backfires."

One of the reasons the fire spread as far as it did, in addition to high winds, was that much of the area near Mt. Baldy lacks fuel breaks, according to the rangers.

Since much of the range destroyed by this fire had not been burned over in some 40 years, and fire storms were created by the winds, temperatures at ground level were measured at 1,400 and 2,000 degrees.

"The soil in much of this area developed a unique water repellent barrier," said Leonard DeBano, soil scientist with the forest service.

"While the 1,400-degree heat consumed all organic matter, soil is an excellent insulator and cools down within a couple of inches.

"Six inches of soil on top of a person would protect him from burning to death.

"But this rapid cooling creates a layer of fused soil through which water will not penetrate." He demonstrated the problem by pouring water into a trench. The ashes and cinders were carried downhill by the water which did not sink into the dirt.

This run-off water and the debris it will carry down the canyons to the reservoirs is causing concern to the forest department.

DeBano estimated that perhaps 60 per cent of the total surface in the destroyed area has this soil condition.

Fitch said seeding of 8,000 acres will begin this week. It will be limited to fast-growing annual grasses spread by hand and helicopter over areas which are suitable for seeding.

He said that not all the area is worth seeding because of steep, rocky terrain.

"For the first time, we are going to try using pre-germinated seed along the fuel breaks," added Fitch.

"This seed must be hand-spread along the break lines because it is soggy and impacted."

Rain on Thanksgiving Day was credited with helping to control the fire in the Baldy area — now officially called the Village Fire by the forest service — and the Big Tujunga area, called the Mill Fire now.

If the weather continues to be as cooperative, many of the fears of the forest service will be eliminated.

If not, and rains are too early or too heavy, it's apt to cause additional problems for some foothill residents who already have fled their homes once this fall.

Bicyclist recovering from hit-run crash

An Upland man injured Monday when his bicycle was side-swiped by the car of a hit-and-run motorist remained in good condition today at San Antonio Community Hospital.

He is William Donald Mosher, 24, of 889 N. Laurel Ave., who was riding south on Grove Avenue near Chaffee Street when a white sedan struck his bike. The bike's front wheel was wedged in the car's hood and carried about 50 feet before dropping off.

Highway patrolmen said they were still seeking the driver who paused for a moment and then sped off, going west on Eighth Street.

A patrolman suffered minor injuries when his car became involved in a traffic accident while enroute to the bicycle accident.

Officer Ron Kauffman was going west on the San Bernardino Freeway with his yellow warning light turned on when he swerved to avoid a car which made a lane change in front of him, said investigators.

The patrol car ran off the roadway near Milliken Avenue, slid back across all four travel lanes and slammed into a concrete median divider. Kauffman was treated at Loma Linda University Hospital and later released.

The other car, driven by Edward Ward of Rialto, also went out of control and hit the median divider. The driver wasn't hurt, said officers.

Crash injures Claremonter

An 18-year-old Claremont woman was injured Tuesday when her car collided with a second car in the 1600 block of Foothill Boulevard in Upland, police reported.

Holly Dixon of 849 Atlanta Court, Claremont was treated for a bruised forehead and facial injuries at San Antonio Community Hospital.

Bank awards design job

Cashion-Horie Architects, Inc. of Pomona has been awarded the contract for design of Bank of America's new downtown Pomona office, announced Gordon Wells, vice president and manager.

The proposed structure will be located at Mission Boulevard and Locust Street, only a short distance from the bank's current facility at Fourth Street and Garey Avenue.

The new building will be almost twice the size of the current facility, covering some 33,500 square feet, with a 22,500-square-foot banking office on the first floor and an 11,000 square foot trust office on the second floor.

Cost of the structure is estimated at $1.8 million.

The banking office will include 31 teller spaces, safe deposit facilities, outside walk-up and drive-up deposit windows, and an expanded parking lot.

The award of a construction contract and date of the start of construction will be announced at a later date.

The bank's current building was constructed in 1955 and is expected to be leveled for parking or some other use.

Developer school tax under study

Can the City of Chino tax developers in order to build new school buildings?

City councilmen Tuesday night authorized a study by the administrative staff of a proposal of requiring a development fee to be used for "construction of necessary school facilities."

Gale Carr, director of community development, said reason for the tax proposal is concern voiced by the Chino Unified School District over the availability of classroom space, "as it relates to ongoing residential development."

School administrators have stated concern over the district's ability to keep up with the "fast residential growth" in the community "even with passage of the bond issue." The district recently passed an $8.5 million bond proposal for new buildings.

Pedestrian injured by car

A pedestrian was injured late Monday afternoon when he was struck by a car while he was crossing Holt Avenue at Huntington Boulevard in Pomona.

The victim, Johnny Robinson, 37, of 533 N. Huntington Blvd., Pomona, suffered facial cuts and leg injury.

Neighbor comes to rescue of Pomona victim of clothes fire

A 48-year-old Pomona man, burned with gasoline while working on his car late Tuesday afternoon, today is in fair condition at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

He is William Harry Messenger of 268 Fanshawe Ave. A hospital spokesman said Messenger has second- and third-degree burns on his hands, arms, chest and abdomen.

Pomona Fire Chief John M. Fowlkes said a neighbor probably saved Messenger's life.

Frank Lewis of 265 Fanshawe Ave. heard a bang and ran outside to see Messenger's shirt in flames. Lewis ran back inside, grabbed a sheet, and ran to Messenger, wrapping him in the sheet and extinguishing the flames.

Fire Department paramedics were called and administered aid.

Messenger told fire Inspector Tom Fee that he was working on automobiles at the house and had a pan of gasoline in his hands. The motor was running and he spilled some on the generator. When it caught fire, he attempted to throw the pan away from the car but instead splashed the gasoline up the front of his shirt which quickly caught fire.

Nursing home death investigated

Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies are investigating the death Nov. 2 of an 83-year-old man whose body was found in his room in a Claremont-area nursing home.

The victim was Arthur Schatz, who had been a resident of the home at 219 E. Foothill Blvd. since June of 1973. He was found dead of undetermined causes.

Prior to Schatz' death, he had been injured in a fall Sept. 25 and had been involved in an altercation Oct. 9 in which his roommate, Adolph D'Onofrio, 66, struck him on the chin with a cane, deputies reported.

Schatz was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital in October as the result of the fall, but not for having been struck, authorities said.

Club must leave school gym

Sacred Heart Athletic Club is to be evicted from the old gymnasium behind the Pomona Education Center.

Club leaders will be notified by letter from district administrators.

Not by vote, but by informal consensus of the school board Tuesday night, administrators were directed to write such a letter informing club leaders that the district would waive rights to prior monies owned but that the gym would have to be vacated in 60 days.

The action grew from information presented by Lynn Rountree, assistant superintendent of business services, on the space needs of the district.

Rountree said that adult education, media center and district library space is inadequate and that the district is paying to lease warehouse space, while providing free the gym to the athletic club.

"Do we rent space for adult school and continue to rent storage space while our gymnasium is being used by a group that has not shown good faith by neglecting to pay its debt?" Rountree asked.

"I can see us using that gym far better than we're using it now."

He reminded the board that a year ago the club was given a one-year extension on its agreement to use the gym, initially approved in 1971 when the district spent $1,864.41 to modify the gym and install the boxing ring.

The club has repaid all but $504.41 of that debt. However, the district pays all maintenance on the gym and the utility bills.

The club, which has strong support of the Spanish-surnamed residents of the community, offers other youth services but primarily sponsors a youth boxing program.

"To be against that," said board President Don Donnelly, "is like being against everything, including motherhood and apple pie."

"It is not the role of the school district to provide the functions of the city. It is time we move in the direction of our goals," said board member C. Allen Braswell.

Ken Pine urged the board to be solidly behind its decision this time because "I don't want to go through what we went through last year."

Last year a standing-room-only crowd filled the board room to protest the threatened eviction. Many were club members dressed in their bright colored jackets. Some carried flags.

Gene Whitlock said the current arrangement is "poor management" and he supported reclaiming the gym space for district use.

Mary Montes said she felt the district should either provide space for the club or make a commitment of resources to help it relocate.

Demo candidate

Norwalk man enters 33rd Senate contest

Cecil Green, mayor pro tem of Norwalk, has declared his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for state senator in the newly created 33rd Senatorial District.

The new district, which encompasses the 63rd and 64th Assembly districts, extends from Artesia and Downey to Pomona and includes Diamond Bar, Walnut, Rowland Heights.

Green, 51, said his top campaign issue will be the rising crime rate, up 18 per cent nationally. "Our courts have become a revolving door in dealing with felons," he said. "I say that door must be slammed shut."

The candidate, who serves on the Los Angeles County Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs Commission, said juvenile crimes in Los Angeles County have risen some 1,000 per cent during the past four years.

"Murders and other violent acts by juveniles are increasing every year. And these aren't unfeeling figures I'm talking about, they're people. The victims are friends and neighbors and relatives of us all who are not being protected."

Green said he would also seek to reduce unemployment by helping the private sector find jobs and placing more emphasis on vocational training for high school students, and would seek to combat inflation by putting a cap on overspending by government.

Green served on the Norwalk Planning Commission for five years before elected to the City Council in 1974. He recently sold his automotive center in Norwalk to devote full time to the campaign.

The district, created by reapportionment, is considered a target by both Republicans and Democrats since its is considered an "open seat" with no incumbent.

N.Y. banks lose more than city

A great deal of misinformation is abroad about New York City's plight and the effects of a U.S. government refusal to bail the city out.

One thing remains clear. Regardless of federal aid and guarantees, unless Washington intends to permanently subsidize the city, New York must, in the end raise taxes sharply or cut back selectively — but drastically — on services, salaries, employment and possibly pensions. A one-shot federal assistance and guarantee will not change that requirement. At most, it will postpone the hard decisions.

As most of us know from experience, when a rough decision must be made, it is better it be made quickly. This argues in favor of city action, down to the quick, and then consideration of federal action — not the reverse.

The argument over whether New York should go into bankruptcy or not has, in the main, nothing to do with what services will be continued and what ones eliminated. As noted above, those nasty decisions must be made in any event.

The argument for bankruptcy is, simply, that the men who run New York City won't realistically face up to their problems so long as temporary relief is in sight.

The plain and simple fact is that it will help not the people of New York City but the shareholders of those banks which have invested heavily in New York City bonds. This assumes that interest payments on the investments will continue, but that there will be a moratorium on redemptions.

Six major New York banks alone hold more than a billion dollars worth of the bonds. They also hold two-thirds of a billion dollars in Big MAC debts.

The problem is complicated because these same banks hold more than $400 million of W.T. Grant paper and have been hurt by the failure of that large retail chain.

They have also been hit by the series of catastrophes — mainly over-expansion, overspeculation and sloppy financial practices — which have driven some major real estate investment trust values down to a small fraction of their paper worth a few years back. These same half dozen New York banks have almost $3.5 billion in this paper.

All this adds up to almost $5.5 billion in questionable loans, no small amount, however it's figured.

That $5.5 billion total is equivalent to 4.1 per cent of the current average deposits of these banks. Writing down of these securities is a blow to bank shareholders, at least until New York City recovers its viability. But it by no means should cause these banks to fold or to default on their obligations.

Banks throughout the country have likewise been hit by the bursting of the real estate investment trust and other land speculation bubbles. Many have been taking more chances than their depositors realize. Numbers of bank managers are now hoping housing and real estate will recover in time to keep shareholders from climbing down their throats. But non-New York bank holdings of New York City obligations are likely to be much less percentage-wise than the holdings of the major New York banks.

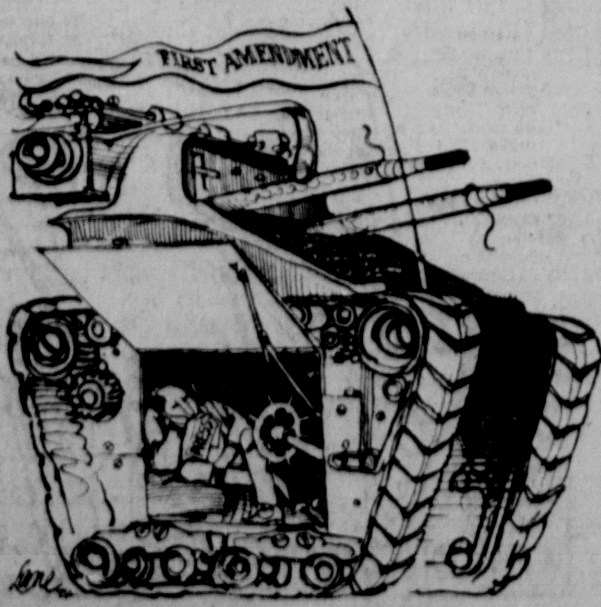

The hardship on bank shareholders should not be minimized. But the effect on depositors should be negligible. Assuming that in the long run the New York City bonds will regain their value, the banking problem lies less in the New York fumbling and more in the realm of their unwise real estate and other long-shot private loans.

The crucial issue

Dear Editor:

The "Opinion" column for Nov. 24 entitled "Science Rebuffs Disaster Theory" seems to me to embody the hope that technology can solve any and all of man's problems. Reliance on this hope is an act of blind and misdirected faith. It is not supported by the litany of predictions, which was the body of the article, because that list totally missed the crucial issue — that technology is merely a tool and the determinant is how this tool is used.

There can be no argument that technology has enabled man to achieve miracles. With it we have built cities, bridged oceans, irrigated vast deserts, halted smallpox, and sent man to the moon and his vision beyond.

Paradoxically, the sending of men to the moon has given mankind a new insight into what technology is, binocular insight. One face of the insight is well laid out in the column, the Faustian vision of man's unlimited ability to dominate the earth. The other facet of the insight is the vision of the incredible beauty of the earth, its fragility, and its lonely isolation in the universe. This vision includes the realities of the earth's limits and the limitations of its inhabitants.

The earth's limits are physical realities — limited arable land, limited non-renewable resources, limited pollution loading capacity. These are known. But, only recently has their interaction with present trends of human activity been analyzed and projections made. It is these analyses and projections which finally prodded some people into concern.

The limits of the earth's inhabitants are of a different nature based on perceived reality, moral ethics and their ability to make choices. We have chosen to live in a technology-intensive society. We have chosen various uses for this tool. We have chosen to wipe out smallpox. We have chosen to go to the moon and beyond.

But, in many areas we have not taken dominion and made the choice.

We have drifted into knowledge of the inner workings of the atom until we now are faced daily with the utter destruction of the planet, either by nuclear holocaust or by the longer term poisoning of the planet by nuclear waste products from fission reactors. We have drifted into knowledge of the secrets of genetics until we are now face to face with the "Brave New World" of test tube babies. We have drifted into a population level we are incapable of feeding, and yet we drift into use of inefficient food sources. We have drifted into a non-renewable resource use rate which will use them up in less than one generation, yet we engineer short product lifetimes. In making the choice to rely on technology and give it dominion, we have drifted into a life style focusing on materialism at the expense of human values and the value of life — fulfilling of wants rather than meeting needs. We have drifted away from our moral focus to such an extent that we are face to face with ultimate global disaster. Unless we make some fundamental cognitive choices, it is only a matter of time. And time is very, very short.

That is the reality. But, we can make the choices. In order to do so, we must see reality and know what the choices are. The first is to take unto ourselves dominion of our technology and face the moral questions.

The Progress Bulletin could do us a great service by focusing on the all-important need of looking within ourselves rather than repeat the assurances of the world's ostriches that all is well. — C. H. T. Springer, Claremont

"Kicking around"

Dear Editor:

I am one of your many subscribers who enjoys your newspaper immensely. I read it from cover to cover and even have my papers saved when I am on vacation so I can read them all when I return.

Since my two sons are involved in AYSO (American Youth Soccer Organization) and I am a proud team mother as well as participating in the Women's Auxiliary of AYSO, I would like you to know how much I enjoy Adrian Mercado and Willie Keo's column "Kicking around" which appears in your sports section every Thursday.

Several people in our AYSO organization have commented on "Kicking around" and how great it is as well as giving AYSO quite a boost.

I hope your plans are to continue running this column "Kicking around". Keep up the good work. — Priscilla Lerma, Pomona

Hardtops ripped off

Dear Editor:

We, too, would like to see the streets of Pomona the safe place that they once were, when we first formed our organization here in Pomona in 1962. In the last year, more than 1,000 removable hardtops from Corvettes, T-Birds, etc. have been stolen in Pomona Valley with no solution as to who is doing it.

Many of these hardtops belonged to members of our organization, some of us losing ours twice. These are just some of the thefts that have not been reported in the newspapers.

Make the streets of Pomona safe, once again, so that we can feel safe to ride in our convertibles, as that's all many of us are left with now, after all the unsolved thefts. Count us, also. — Rosemarie Bachman, Secretary Pomona Valley Corvette Assn.

Bare Nixon plot to get Demos

WASHINGTON — In the early 1970s, district attorneys appointed by President Nixon began investigating Democratic governors across the country.

The governors are now convinced that Nixon used the federal law enforcement machinery to knock the Democrats out of power in as many states as possible.

Suddenly, Democratic chief executives in several states found themselves under searching federal scrutiny. Among them were Kentucky's Wendell Ford, Louisiana's Edwin Edwards, Maryland's Marvin Mandel, Oklahoma's David Hall and Pennsylvania's Milton Shapp.

Hall was convicted, although the FBI transcripts used in his trial had been altered. A former Democratic governor, Illinois' Otto Kerner, was also convicted. And only last week, Mandel was indicted.

In contrast, only one Republican governor, West Virginia's Arch Moore, got into trouble with the Justice Department. Tax agents had found that, as a congressman, he had lived like a millionaire during the 1962-67 period. He bought a home in the fashionable Potomac hunt country of Maryland where he kept horses and threw lavish parties. Yet he reported only $45,000 in taxable income during the entire five years.

The Internal Revenue Service recommended that Moore be prosecuted for his alleged failure to pay $168,000 in taxes. But the Justice Department, which was so eager to prosecute Democrats, let Moore off the hook.

Now Moore is facing new charges of accepting illegal campaign contributions. He slipped around to see the friendly Republicans at the Justice Department last October. Once again, he has managed to escape indictment, although a Justice Department spokesman insists the case against him hasn't been closed.

Several Democratic governors got together, meanwhile, at their 1973 governors' conference to discuss the Nixon plot against them. Shapp complained Richard Thornberg, then the U.S. attorney in Philadelphia, not only had started an investigation of him but had leaked grand jury findings to Republicans in the Pennsylvania legislature.

Thornberg subsequently was appointed assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division, with authority over all the investigations. Earlier this month, Mandel fired off a confidential, 19-page letter to Thornberg, charging that he had been the victim of a political witch hunt.

He charged, for example, that the late FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover had delivered a file full of reports about his sex life to then Atty. Gen. John Mitchell.

Mandel also charged that "in 1970 and 1971 I was the subject of an investigation by the intelligence division of the Internal Revenue Service. I am also informed that, in order to avoid notifying me of this investigation, and to permit it to proceed clandestinely, the file was not opened in my name, but, instead in the former name of my present wife, Jeanne Dorsey."

Footnote: Thornberg told our associate Jack Cloberty that he had been cleared by a Justice Department investigation of leaking grand jury information against Shapp. Thornberg also insisted he had received no pressure from Washington to start the Shapp investigation.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: The White House grounds have been rigged up with elaborate electronic equipment to thwart any would-be assassins. Secreted in the landscape are pressure sensors, sound sensors, infrared cameras and other technological marvels, which were tested in the Vietnam war zones. Similar gadgets have been scattered around the grounds of ex-President Richard Nixon's San Clemente haven.

For the average taxpayer, a long-distance call to a friend or relative is an occasional luxury. But for members of Congress, newly blessed with a pay hike and loaded with fringe benefits, long-distance calls are free. Congressional offices not only are allotted free calls during office hours but also get completely free, coast-to-coast service after hours. It's supposed to be used strictly for official business. But our own spot checks with trusted sources show that most of the after-hour calls are personal.

We recently reported charges, made by an FBI informant named Earl Robert Merritt, Jr. that he had committed thefts on behalf of the FBI. We were unable to get a comment from the FBI at the time. Now the FBI has responded and we are happy to publish it. "These allegations," declares the FBI, "are fabricated and completely false. Merritt was specifically advised on several occasions that he was not to engage in any illegal activities in his efforts to obtain information. The FBI categorically denies that the activities of the agents in contact with Merritt were at any time improper."

Air Force investigators have recommended that Sgt. Richard W. Hicks be discharged because he is a homosexual. His picture, showing him dancing with a homosexual, appeared in Newsweek magazine. Thereafter, Hicks was questioned, and he admitted being a homosexual. The investigators formally recommended that he be given an administrative discharge. He intends to fight it.

Doc Peirsol Just in jest

If the U.S. Postal Department has its way, from here on out the postman won't be ringing twice on Saturdays. In fact, he won't be ringing at all, for the department is considering doing away with Saturday mail deliveries.

And if that happens it will not only be never on Sundays and Holidays but never on Saturdays as well. — It is all a part of an economy program which, along with the upcoming 3 cent hike on first class postage stamps and the threat that home owners will be required to locate their mail boxes at the street curb, is designed to lower the appalling deficit the department has been operating under year after year. — But why, I ask you, such half way measures?

Why doesn't the Postmaster General just do away with all mail deliveries and insist that we the people walk, not ride. (We've also got to conserve on gasoline consumption, don't we?) to the Post Office each day personally pick up our mail? After all, the exercise would certainly do us good — and look at the money the Postal Department would be saving.

Angola becomes a battleground

The official end of Portuguese rule in Angola, a conquest stretching back to the 15th century, marks the collapse of the last European empire in Africa.

Unlike the standards set years ago by the British and the French as they relaxed their domination over Africa south of the Sahara, the Portuguese did not deliver freedom to any group. Instead they granted independence to the Angolan people.

This has sparked a bloody grab for power by three warring liberation movements, fighting each other, and competing for who will rule the six million people of this mineral rich nation, and who will exploit, for whatever purpose, her oil, diamonds and coffee.

All three of the Angolan nationalist movements held independence ceremonies in the areas they control. The Popular Movement holds the capitol, Luanda, and the center strip as well as Angola's northern territories with its rich oil resources.

The National Front for the Liberation of Angola, backed by the United States, Zaire and China, is in the north and parts of the south. The National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, with support from Zambia, Zaire and the U.S., controls most of the south, some of it in cooperation with the National Front.

These three competing Fronts enjoy the support of various sectors of the international bloc in the east and west. And thus, this relatively small African nation has become a battleground, by proxy, of the contending forces of the Cold War that has gotten all too hot for the thousands who are killed there.

What will happen in this small nation is not now known, but it demonstrates the extent to which the great powers of the world are willing to use African soil, and African lives, as a continuing battleground in their search for domination of the entire world.

This is sad news for the African continent and people of color around the globe.

Did you know that you and I spend $6 billion a year on "national intelligence?" Did you know that you and I are spending $750 million for a defense budget item called "other procurement/Air Force" which really means the CIA?

Did you know that money for America's spy apparatus is listed in the federal budget as "contingencies defense" or "worldwide military command and control systems" or "procurement defense agencies/special activities" or "research development test and evaluation?"

What your tax dollars are spent on is hidden from you in this fashion to hide the cloak and dagger ways of the secret intelligence apparatus. Despite the prohibition written into the Constitution against secret spending of public monies, the process goes on and it's an old one.

Every year, your representatives in the Congress, and mine, voted to spend our money for things known only to a select few. Ask your House member or Senators, how they voted on the $1.2 billion appropriation for the National Security Agency.

Did they vote "yes" to spend $2 billion for the National Reconnaissance Office? Or did they vote "no" when the Congress approved $100 million for the Defense Intelligence Agency?

Remember now, and next election day, that these are some of the same men and women who wouldn't vote federal guarantees to keep New York City afloat, and who laughed down a few thousand dollars a few years ago to keep rats from biting children in our big cities.

The same kind of leadership that can't override a Presidential veto of programs to feed or house the poor automatically accepts millions of dollars to peak into other people's business.

That's democracy, I guess.

I wonder if any of these people want to buy the Brooklyn Bridge.

Pot maker located; handles are available

Here's hoping you can help me with a problem. In 1966 I bought a set of stainless steel cookware in Bismarck, N.D. It has the name Vollrath stamped on the bottom.

Now I find that the lid knobs and side handles have deteriorated to the point of being unsafe to use.

The knobs are stripped of threads and falling off and the handles have cracked into pieces. The knobs and handles are of a black bakelite material.

The knobs screw on and the handles are rectangular pieces that are screwed into place with two small screws.

I have no idea where to write for replacement parts and would appreciate any help you can give. — Mrs. G. B., Chino.

With the help of the Pomona Library, we located the Vollrath Co. in Sheboygan, Wis.

Mary Knecht, administrative manager of the direct sales division, sent us drawings of handles now available and an order form. We sent them to you.

Miss Knecht also sent the name of a local cookware distributor, Brenner Stainless Steel in Hollywood. We wish you a merry cooking season.

In July I ordered two records through Columbia House in Terre Haute, Ind.

Around the first of August, I received a shipment with my invoice but it was someone else's order.

I immediately wrote a covering letter of explanation and mailed the entire package back to Columbia House.

As it did not occur to me that there would be any problem about returning the package, I mailed it at the special record postage rate and did not get a receipt. Apparently that was my big mistake.

Last month I received a monthly statement which still included these two albums and a form letter demanding payment of my "overdue" charges.

No indication was given that the returned shipment was ever received.

When I paid my bills Oct. 1, I again included a letter with my payment for other items, again explaining the whole situation, I thought, to the credit office.

As I have my canceled check and return receipt for that letter, which I certified, I know someone at Columbia House received my second letter of explanation. Whether anyone bothered to read it is another question. — N. R., Pomona.

Columbia House did read our letter. Paula Copeland, assistant director of operations, replied that your records had been shipped and should arrive soon.

When you got them, you told us we were "terrific" and it was great to know "someone out there can communicate with all the silly computers." That's an ability we picked up writing Action Line. They didn't teach us that in school.

Ann Landers

Youth needs a helping hand

Dear Ann Landers: Even though the odds are a million to one against my letter getting in the paper, I'm going to write it anyway.

I'm a senior in high school, age 17, and male. I gulped down two big double shots of gin this morning before I left for school. Suddenly I realized I'm an alcoholic.

I started to drink when I was 15. I've been drinking heavily for about six months. My grades in school aren't as good as they were, but they aren't bad. I've never flunked anything. I have fallen asleep in class, but no one suspects I'm a boozier. I never drink more than anyone else when I'm in a crowd. I do my serious drinking alone.

I know my problem. It's my father. He picks on Mom all the time, thinks he knows everything and has a terrible temper. He was the only male in a family with six girls and tries to run everyone's life. I guess I hate him.

I have no one to turn to for help, but I know I need it. Please tell me what to do. — Too Young To Be A Drunk

Dear Friend: Have you thought of talking to your high school counselor? Don't shrug this suggestion off until you've tried it. Like everything else, some counselors are more hip than others. I hope your school has good ones.

Look in the phone book for Alcoholics Anonymous. Find out when your neighborhood group meets. It's free and nobody asks questions. A.A. has a higher rate of success in rehabilitating alcoholics than psychiatry, religion, hypnotism, etc. Please give it a try.

Dear Ann Landers: May I be you today? Here's my letter:

Dear Pet Owner: I killed your dog today. He dashed onto the highway from behind shrubbery, not ten feet in front of my wheels. Being only a dog, he couldn't know that an automobile cannot stop from fifty miles an hour in ten feet. Had he cleared my wheels, the oncoming car would have hit him. From the time you let him out your door unsupervised, this was his inevitable fate.

All day I have felt sick inside. I love dogs — have had at least one ever since I was very young. But within the sick feeling, there is cold anger — anger at you, dear Pet Owner, for allowing your dog to run free, especially since you live beside a very busy and dangerous highway.

You will grieve at the loss of your pet, but if you ever again own a dog, please keep him behind a fence or on a leash. Spare yourself and me the grief of his death. I live in St. Louis but I could be — Any Driver, Anywhere

Dear Driver: That same terrible fate befalls three million pets a year. Thank you for telling us how it looks from behind the wheel.

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this for the lady who lives in Schenectady with her hairy husband. She wants him to shave his entire body because "the gorilla" turns her off. I'd love to arrange a transplant between her husband and mine.

Elmer is masculine and handsome but he has six hairs on his chest. I'd give anything if he looked more like a gorilla and less like a ballet dancer. Sign me — Gyped

Dear Gyped: Nobody's perfect. Be satisfied with Elmer's six hairs and kitcherbeefin'.

Sound sleep is mostly sounds

"In the still of the night" the old song goes. Ha! Anyone who sleeps all night misses a symphony under the stars, from the first chirping of the crickets to the first crash of garbage cans. Sometimes night is the noisiest time of day.

There are, first, the house noises. Lying awake in the white hours of the night, one's imagination tends to run riot. All the old familiar sounds become new and unfamiliar — and alarming. The creak of the stair, the loose screen banging in the breeze, the sudden flap of a window shade all take on ominous proportions. No one really BELIEVES in ghosts, of course, ha, ha. But wasn't that a low moan you heard in the attic? (Awaken your wife and send her up to check.)

The machinery in the average house continues its domestic cacophony through the night. You hear the soft pop of the water heater, the whirr of the electric clock. When the refrigerator suddenly hums into action, you leap five feet in the air. (Wife growls sleepily "What the hell is this, a trampoline?")

If it's a stormy night, rain lashes at the window pane, and the wind bends naked boughs to scratch against the casement like (shudder) skeleton fingers. You hear the moan of the wind in the chimney (you HOPE it's the wind in the chimney). A screen door creaks stridently, the exact sound heard in "Murders in the Rue Morgue" before the bodies were found in the . . . ulp!

At such times, the only sensible recourse is to get up, turn on all the lights in the house, pour yourself a shot of some pinch-bottle nerve-restorative and settle down in front of TV until the Late-Late Show becomes the Farm Report or Morning Meditations.

Nocturnal house noises are eerie enough, but the outside noises are even worse. Distant train whistles, helicopter thumping overhead, roar of freeway traffic, thunder of two motorcycles dragging in front of your house — like Macbeth, they murder sleep.

Occasionally there are odd night birds who gossip raucously outside your bedroom window, apparently arguing over an errant field mouse. They go away when you let the cats out, but then the feline yowling sounds like feeding time at the zoo. They are either making love or tearing each other apart. I can't tell the difference — I only hope THEY can.

The caterwauling arouses every dog in the neighborhood to a cannonade of barking, first at the cats, then at each other, with possibly a bay or two at the moon thrown in for good measure.

When the dogs quiet down, you hear low voices nearby. It's either your neighbor's television (he can't sleep, either) or two burglars discussing the best way to get into your house.

As the sky lightens in the east, you hear the comforting clink of the milkman's bottles, the soft plop of the morning newspaper on your lawn, and the clatter of cans as the trashmen begin their morning soccer game. Another day has arrived. Silent night my foot!

Dr. Lamb

Brain tumors with pain

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In your column not too long ago you wrote to a woman whose son thought he could have a brain tumor because of his headaches.

Don't recall just how you worded it, but the way I read it you gave the impression that a brain tumor wasn't all that painful. When did you have one, doctor? I happen to have one and can tell you that it is the worst pain one can imagine. My head hurts so that I get an upset stomach.

DEAR READER — You misinterpreted my comments. The point was not that headaches from brain tumors are not very painful. The point was that you can have a brain tumor with a headache that is not very painful.

Most people think all brain tumors create severe headaches, and indeed they can, as in your case. But, most people don't realize that some brain tumors are associated with relatively mild headaches, which can be relieved with aspirin and are often intermittent.

That shouldn't be too surprising since you can have a brain tumor without any headache at all. Tumors in the front of the brain may cause no symptoms at first other than a change in personality.

The symptoms of brain tumor are highly variable and depend entirely on their location and size.

I hope you do well now that your surgery is over, which you mentioned in the rest of your letter.

Readers who want information on headaches can send in 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 2-9, Headache: Man's Most Common Pain, with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently I had open heart surgery, and my question relates to rheumatic fever. Never being sick and having many physical examinations in my 57 years of living, the doctor thinks my cause of infection of the aortic heart valve was caused by rheumatic fever. Is there any way a person can tell if they have or have had rheumatic fever?

DEAR READER — Rheumatic fever is a complication of a streptococcal infection. A person usually has so many sore throats in his lifetime that it is almost impossible to be sure one wasn't caused by strep.

The strep infection can and usually does occur during childhood. It may be mild and go unnoticed or more severe. Rheumatic fever may follow as a complication. It may also be mild or severe, associated with immediate involvement of the heart and even red, hot, swollen joints. If it is mild it may go unnoticed and run its course without anyone knowing the child is sick.

Even if the attack was mild, it may involve the heart and slowly over the years cause changes in one or more of the heart valves. The damaged heart valve may continue to show progressive changes years later and finally be so defective that surgery becomes advisable in some cases.

The doctor can get a pretty good idea from the looks of the valve and studies with a microscope what cause the valve damage.

Given these circumstances, it is not uncommon for an adult to have heart valve damage from rheumatic fever and still have no clear history of any rheumatic fever in previous years.

Jacoby's bridge

Jim wins, then loses

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Today's column is written in the first person by Jim Jacoby.

Unlike my father, who has been playing bridge since before the flood, I have only about 25 years experience. I must have played more good hands than bad ones. The record is pretty good, but I sure have had some real doozies on the wrong side.

Here is a hand that I overbid a trifle. The final slam contract wasn't a bad one. Apparently it depended on a heart finesse, but if you look at all the cards you will see the finesse was wrong and I was going down.

Then West handed me my contract on a silver platter. He led the nine of hearts right into me. I took the trick with my queen, played two rounds of trumps and led dummy's last heart. East followed low and I started to think.

I could only trump two hearts in dummy. If West had led a singleton heart I needed to finesse my jack. The more I thought, the more sure I became that he had done just that. I played my jack of hearts and had given the contract back.

Ask the Jacobys

A Pennsylvania reader wants to know if the two spades bid in the sequence one notrump by declarer, two hearts by second hand and two spades by partner is a forcing bid.

This is a mighty good question and the answer is that most experts play it as nonforcing and most other players as forcing. The important thing is to get a partnership agreement on the matter.

TALLEST, SHORTEST

Q. "Say you make a list of the tallest men in town. Then you list the tallest of their sons. On the average, which will be the taller, the fathers or the sons?"

A. The fathers. Likewise, if you list the shortest men in town along with the shortest of their sons, the fathers on the average will be shorter than their sons. Scholars who make a study of genes call this phenomenon the "regression toward the mean."

Q. "WHO SAID, 'A friend who is very near and dear may in time become as useless as a relative'?" Mark Twain?"

A. No, George Ade said that. Twain said, "Hurry up and come to visit me before we get too old to hear each other swear."

Q. "WHAT'S the oldest surname in the world?"

A. Katz.
